CASTING THE FIRST VOTE

Jean Hadley led the line-up for Minden's first advance poll on Saturday at the curling club. Assisted by deputy returning officer Mary McKelvey, right, Hadley cast the first ballot as many more people waited their turn. Also, the large number of people lined up outside the municipal office to sign proxies indicates that cottagers have become heavily involved in this year's election.

Change in court dates confuses local MPP

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

With all the recent confusion and doubt about the future of criminal court services in Haliburton County, even the riding's MPP seems unsure of the situation.

Last week Dennis Drainville, MPP for Victoria-Haliburton, sent a letter to The Times referring to an editorial the paper ran on September 23.

The editorial dealt with the withdrawal of criminal court services from Minden to Lindsay and the fact that local witnesses and victims are being forced to travel south to appear in court.

"You erred in saying that Haliburton witnesses and victims would have to travel to Lindsay," Drainville said in his letter to the editor. "The decision does not affect those who are residents of the county. In cases where the accused is from outside the county but the witnesses are from Haliburton, the trial will be held in Minden."

Suspecting that Drainville's statement might be less than accurate, The Times called court officials who confirmed that residents of Haliburton County have been travelling to Lindsay to appear as witnesses in local cases.

The official also said that this practice will continue.

When informed of the incorrect statements in Drainville's letter, members of the MPP's staff at Queen's Park said the information had come from employees of the Attorney General's office in Peterborough and promised to look into the apparent contradiction.

On Thursday The Times received a phone call from Jim Adams, a spokesman for Drainville. He admitted that, contrary to Drainville's statement, residents of Haliburton County are being forced to travel to Lindsay to appear in court cases where the accused is not a local resident.

Adams said there is a "rule of thumb" that if more witnesses are from Haliburton County than elsewhere, then the trial will be held in Minden, but if the people who are travelling from outside the county out-number the local residents, the trial is held in Lindsay.

Admitting the system is not perfect and relies on "judgement calls", Adams said there may still be cases where local residents have to travel to Lindsay despite the fact that a lesser number of witnesses are from outside the county.

Doctor wants inquest into Sandy Bannon's murder

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Chief Coroner of Ontario has been asked to hold an inquiry into the recent murder/suicide which took the life of Carnarvon teenager Sandy Bannon.

The request comes from Dr. Alan Davidson, a Bracebridge psychiatrist who also treats patients in Haliburton County.

"In the 30 years I've practised psychiatry, I've encountered many sad situations. The death of Sandy Bannon of Carnarvon has particularly attracted my notice and concern," Davidson said in a letter to Chief Coroner Dr. James Young. "An attractive and intelligent child, Sandy's prospects for a happy and healthy future were shattered by her father's inability to let go, upon seeing his marriage dissolve."

Sandy died after being shot in the back by her father Ken outside the Mill Pond Restaurant on September 26. Restaurant owner Renee Hubercheck, who was also shot in the attack, is currently recovering from a bullet wound in the chest. After the incident Ken Bannon's body was found on a dump road where he had turned the gun on himself.

Although he was not involved with the Bannon family, Davidson says his knowledge of the circumstances has led him to believe that Ken Bannon was suffering from a psychiatric condition which he calls "Fatal Attraction Syndrome".

In the letter to Young, Davidson says a coroner's inquest into the Bannon tragedy might provide some answers about family violence.

"This case cries for a wide-ranging and thought-provoking inquest by an impartial and experienced (out-of-county) coroner," he says. He further suggests that the inquest should invite witnesses from other countries to testify on the Fatal Attraction Syndrome and its prevention.

"I say this because, contrary to expectations, changes in the divorce legislation have not let to a reduction in family violence," he says. "Indeed, as a psychiatrist with more than 30 years experience, I've been seeing cases of every increasing severity and horror."

In an interview last week, Davidson said family tragedies like the Bannons' have become relatively common and an inquest will allow society to understand what happened and probe the causes of family violence.

Helping with grief

Members of the community are invited to share their sorrow during a get together at Zion United Church in Carnarvon this Sunday.

Hosted by Reverend Ed Moll, Healing the Grief is being held in response to recent tragedies which have taken place in the community.

Also present to help people deal with their feelings will be Mike James of the Haliburton County Counselling Centre, Donna Sutherland of Kinark Child and Family Services, funeral director Gord Monk, and a member of the Minden district OPP.

The meeting will be held November 10 at 7:30 p.m.

Busy week in local politics

With advance polling already being held and voting day just a week away, the municipal election campaign has reached a climax. This week a large portion of The Times has been given over to campaign coverage as voters strive to become more informed in the days leading up to the ballot being placed in the box.

The following is a list of the election-related stories which appear throughout the paper:

Trustee candidates tackle tough questions

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The new board of education which emerges from next week's election will have to be prepared for a public which is much more interested in the school system, and its costs, than in the past.

That was the message given to the seven prospective trustees, who are vying for three spots on the school board, at last Wednesday's all-candidates' meeting sponsored by The Times at Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

As moderator Jack Brezina read questions submitted by some of the 200 people who attended the meeting, it was obvious that voter awareness of education issues has been heightened during this election.

Candidates were asked to deal with subjects like accommodation, tax increases, administrative costs, transportation and provincially-mandated programs.

To start the meeting, the candidates were allowed three minutes each to speak to the audience, introduce themselves and outline their platforms.

Norm Mills

Norm Mills focused on the increasing cost of education during his speech. He said the attitude towards taxpayers, which is evident in the provincial government "railroading" programs onto local boards, has to change.

"I don't know how pensioners deal with tax increases," he said. "During a recession we should be showing some restraint."

Commenting on the school board's recent decision to expand Archie Stouffer, Mills said the proposals considered by the trustees ranges from "expensive to very expensive."

Because he no longer has any children in the Haliburton County school system, Mills said he is in a position to make "objective decisions".

Wendy Ladurantaye

In her six years on the board of education, including a year as chairman, Wendy Ladurantaye said she has been really involved in board operation.

Among her goals she listed the need for proper accommodation and the importance of planning for the future. She said the trustees will have to maintain better communication with the community than has been the case in the past.

Ladurantaye also stressed the importance of continuing to lobby the provincial government for better funding in recognition of Haliburton County's situation.

Marian Harris

Describing herself as a "newcomer" after 16 years in Haliburton County, Marian Harris, a native of the Netherlands, told the audience that she worked as a teacher before moving to Canada in 1969. She has served on the board of directors for the County of Haliburton Agency for Child Enrichment (CHACE) and, as a parent, has volunteered in school classrooms.

Saying she would not make promises she can't keep, Harris said she is dedicated to working with other trustees toward a common goal; "Quality education at a reasonable price."

Mary Anne Wilson

With public respect for governments at an all-time low, incumbent trustee Mary Anne Wilson said voters in Anson, Hindon and Minden are fortunate to have a selection of candidates from which to choose.

Wilson said members of the school board are being forced to make a number of difficult decisions and, during her three years as a trustee, she has devoted time to committees to workshops to improve her skills.

Outlining her philosophy, Wilson said she believes everyone should have access to equal educational opportunities socio-economic background or the area of the province in which they live.

It's important for trustees to "strengthen the relationship between all the stakeholders in public education," she said.

Mike Kitcheman

Mike Kitcheman introduced himself as a father of two children, a 10-year resident of the county and a co-ordinator with the Futures program.

Among the issues that concern him, he listed the need to stop the provincial government from implementing mandatory Junior Kindergarten, which he says the county doesn't need and can't afford.

Kitcheman also suggested that one of the trustees should be appointed as a public information officer for the school board to ensure there is regular contact with the public. By having a trustee assigned to that position, he said there would be no need to hire additional staff or incur any more expense.

As a board member, Kitcheman said he would vote to freeze trustee wages for at least the next three years to "set an example" of fiscal responsibility.

If elected he said he would like to serve on the finance and negotiating committees (more on page 8)

Break-ins worry merchants

A series of problems in the downtown area have a number of merchants in Minden worried.

Among the incidents which have occurred recently are the breaking of a window at the Apparitions Gallery and a number of break-ins.

The window in the gallery was broken October 25. According to the store owner, Paul Hopkins the window was smashed late in the evening when a number of youths became involved in a shoving match outside the store.

One of the youths was pushed into the window and the glass broke.

Hopkins, who arrived on the scene shortly after the incident, said the breakage appeared to be an accident rather than an outright act of vandalism. He said the youth who was responsible for breaking the window immediately identified himself and offered apologies for the damage.

While the store owner appreciated the forthright attitude shown by the youth, the owner of the building must bear the cost of replacing the broken pane, Hopkins will have to have the sign repainted on the new pane of glass, and over a thousand dollars worth of figurines in the window were damaged.

"It's not just the damage, which is serious enough," the owner said. "One or more of the young people could have been seriously injured by the glass."

He attributed the incident to the fact that the community's main street has become a gathering place for youths in the evening and while there may be no criminal intent, gatherings such as this can lead to incidents like the broken window.

A confrontation also ensued following the breakage when a resident of the apartments over the downtown stores attempted to intervene in the incident and an argument ensued.

Hopkins stepped in and found himself in the middle of a shoving match, which, though it ended quickly, could have created more problems. Hopkins was hurt in the brief scuffle.

The following evening a number of businesses on the main street were also broken into.

Both the Rockcliffe Tavern and the K & A Restaurant were entered and a quantity of cash and some merchandise were stolen.

An unsuccessful attempt was also made to break into the Leitha Sweets and Treats store the same evening.

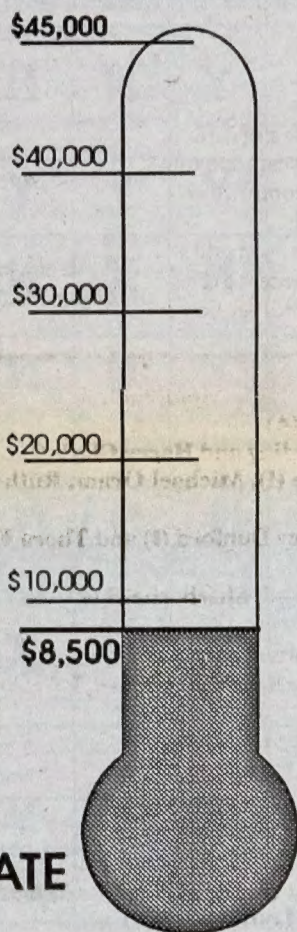

Paul Hopkins examines the shattered window in front of his Apparitions Gallery on Minden's main street. The incident resulted in over $1000 worth of damage to figurines on display in the storefront.

The fund will be used to install permanent night landing lights at a helipad to serve the Minden Hospital. Contributions can be made through donation boxes located in most businesses in the area. Those wishing to mail a contribution can do so by sending their cheque or money order to: Sandy Bannon Memorial Fund, c/o Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, Box 427, Minden, Ontario. Funds in excess of the amount required to install the lighting system will be used to enhance emergency health services in Haliburton County.

Road crew unearth old water line

by Susan Grober

A bit of history was recently dug up by a Minden roads crew.

A wooden culvert dating back to the 1860s and '70s was recently dug up by a roads crew, and was donated to the Minden County Town Museum by Roads Superintendent Clayton Cameron.

At the October 24 council meeting,

Councillor Verne Graham offered information on the culvert, which was part of a water line built by one-time Member of Parliament Samuel S. Peck. Peck owned a cheese factory located just behind where the Sunrise Apartments now stand. The line supplied fresh water to a fountain on the front lawn, and was drilled by the Harrison brothers on Gull Lake, said Graham.

Witnesses will still travel to Lindsay

Adams said an effort is being made to ensure the system errs on the side of witnesses rather than the accused.

Previously, criminal court was held in the Minden municipal building every Wednesday, but earlier this year local court dates were reduced to two days a month with the remainder transferred to Lindsay, where court is held five days a week.

Ontario Attorney General Howard Hampton has said the Minden facility is inad-equated because it lack barrier-free access for people with disabilities and has no secure holding cells when custody of a prisoner is required.

In his letter to the newspaper, Drainville repeated these concerns and added insufficient meeting and interview rooms; inadequate court security; lack of alternate exits; and "poor and very noisy air conditioning" to the list.

He also repeated Hampton's claim that there are "no plans to close the courts in Minden."

The current lease for court services in the municipal building expires in December of 1992, at which time it is hoped the municipality will have secured new facilities which meet the government's criteria.

Until then, court officials say that because of the limited number of court days available in Minden, some residents of Haliburton County will have to continue making the trip to Lindsay to appear in court as witnesses.

Candidates respond to tax coalition questionnaire

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

As part of its efforts to assess the platforms of the county and school board candidates, the Haliburton County Taxpayers Coalition distributed questionnaires which asked the candidates' opinions on a variety of local issues.

The questions were part of a 16-page form which was sent to the candidates, 14 pages of which came from the Ontario coalition and were distributed to candidates across the province.

Of the 29 candidates seeking one of 17 positions on county council, 18 returned completed questionnaires to the tax coalition. Although Minden reeve Bern Berry completed the form, he would not allow the coalition to release his answers to the public.

There are several issues on which there is almost complete unanimity among the candidates who completed the questionnaire. All of the candidates agreed on the following issues:

- Locally-controlled expenses should be increased by no more than the rate of inflation;
- Before any action is taken on market value assessment, public meetings should be held to insure the greatest possible discussion and input by the taxpayers;
- The provincial government should review Ontario's welfare legislation in order to make it more efficient.

And, except for acclaimed Sherborne reeve Ross Rabjohn, all candidates agreed that municipalities should be able to veto downloaded programs that local taxpayers are unwilling to finance.

From the results, it is clear that the proposed county official plan will not be a high priority for the new county council. Only four candidates said the county plan should proceed before all municipalities have their own official plans in place. In Minden, reeve candidate Ray Moore is the only candidate who supports the county plan.

The county's economic development office is another initiative which does not have wide support from the candidates, with only three candidates expressing favour with the idea.

Of the 22 candidates for the school board, only 13 of 22 candidates completed the questionnaire. Like Berry, Dysart trustee Len Salvatori completed the form but would not allow the results to be published. Minden was the only municipality from which all school board candidates responded. Dysart and Stanhope were the only other two municipalities represented in the response.

There were far less areas of consensus among trustee candidates than among council candidates.

The results of the candidate responses are found in the table at the bottom of this page. The trustee responses are on the facing page.

Criminal neglect

Criminal court services in Haliburton County are inadequate and, despite MPP Dennis Drainville's recent attempts to explain the situation, there is no excuse for the inadequacy.

The fact is, local people are being forced to travel to Lindsay for a service which should be available in this county.

Drainville's statement that county residents are not being forced to travel to Lindsay is simply untrue and indicates either a failure on the part of the MPP to become informed, or a weak attempt to deflect criticism away from the provincial government.

In either case it's not the sort of behaviour we expect from the man we elected to represent our interests at Queen's Park, especially since county council has appealed to Drainville to try and address the situation.

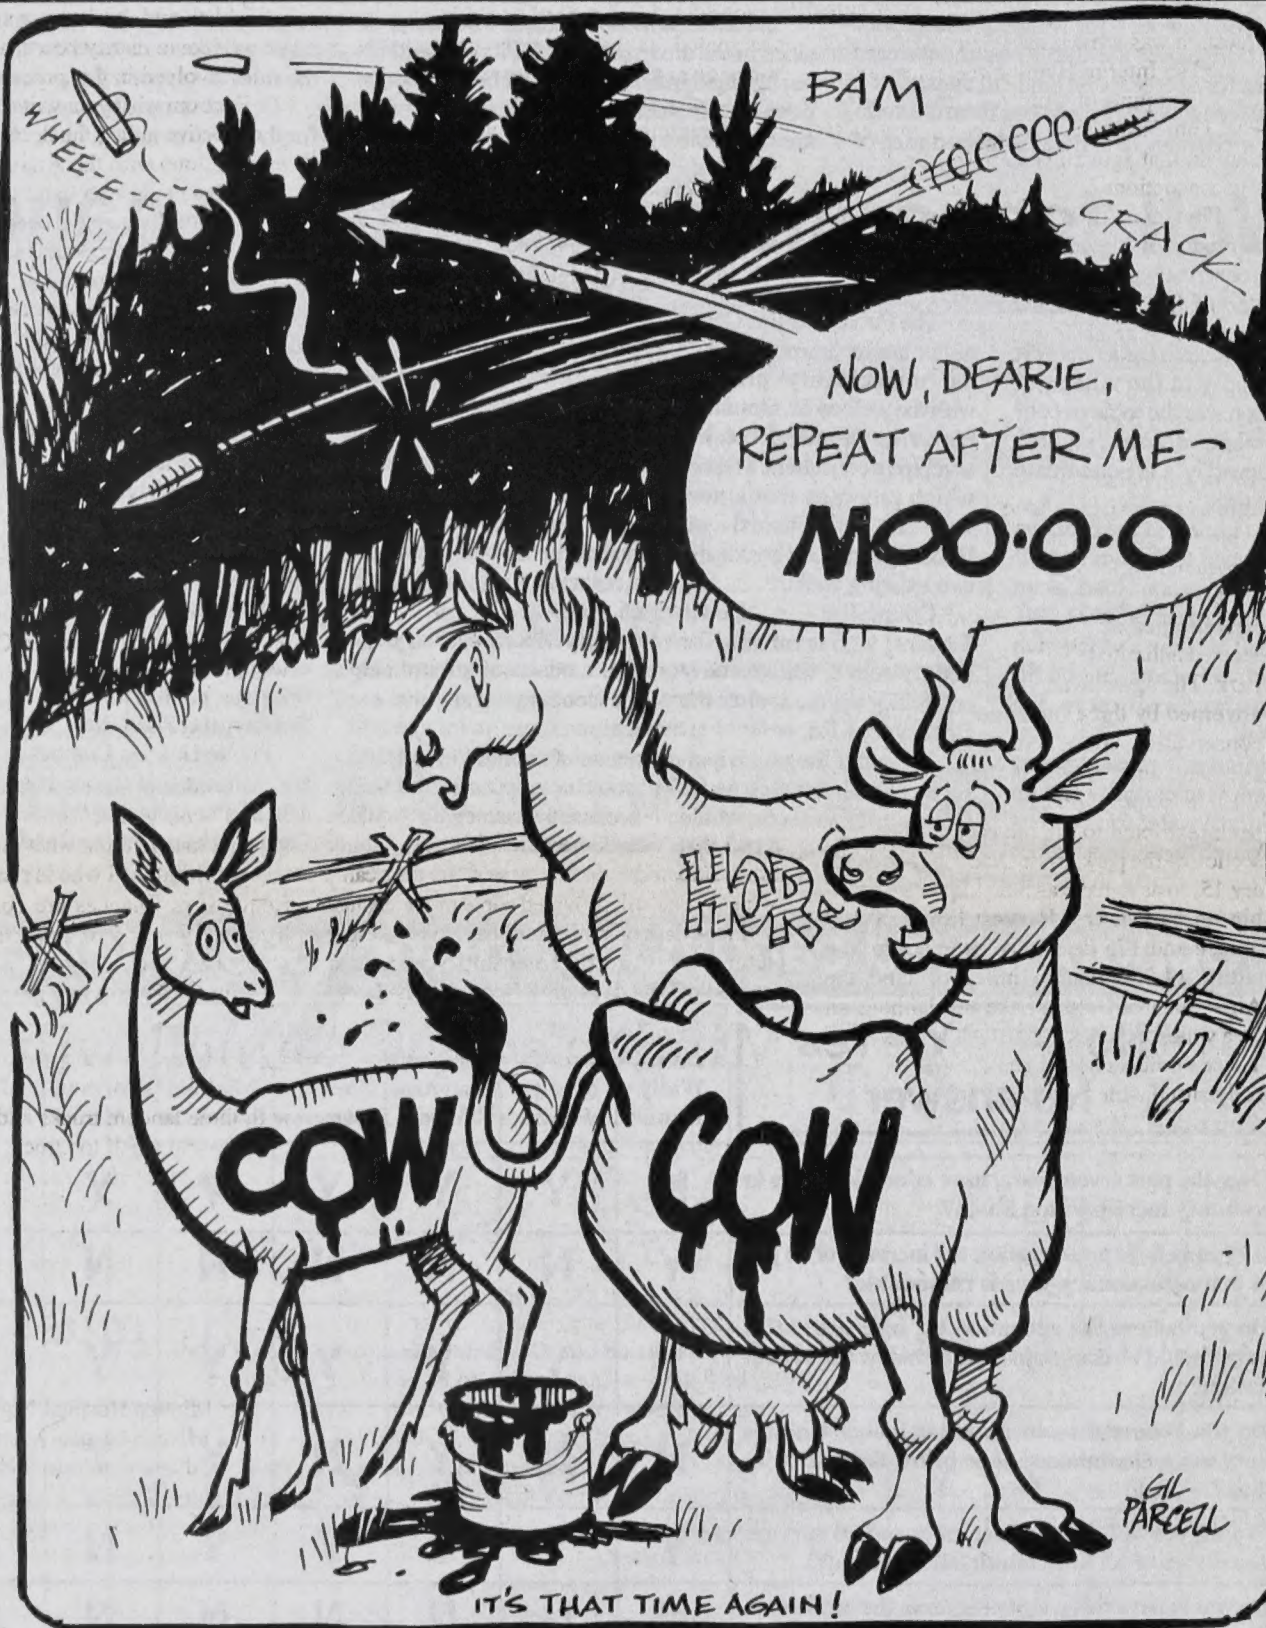

When the number of court days in Minden were reduced from once a week to twice a month, there were two reasons given for the change. First, court officials said they were trying to provide better service for people who lived in southern Ontario and had to return to Haliburton County to appear in court. The implication is clear: It is quite acceptable to inconvenience the residents of this county in order to benefit those that live in Toronto.

The other reason given for the transfer to Lindsay is the inadequacy of court facilities in Minden, which do not provide barrier-free access and lack proper holding cells for prisoners in custody. While we accept the fact that certain cases have to be sent to Lindsay until the issue of proper facilities can be corrected, we can't believe that the number of trials involving access or custody warrant such a drastic reduction of court dates in Minden.

As it stands now, a full day of Haliburton County court cases are being heard in Lindsay each week and most of them are cases which could be, and should be, held in Minden.

Drainville claims that the decision to reduce Haliburton's court service was made "by those people regularly engaged in the work of the Minden court" in which he means the judge, the crown attorney and the Attorney Generals office. Considering that all these people are based in Lindsay, it seems doubtful that they are in a position to make an objective decision regarding court services in Haliburton County. Let's face it, the more cases they can schedule in Lindsay, the less time they have to spend driving to Minden.

During last year's provincial election, Drainville called Haliburton "Ontario's forgotten county". Let's hope he hasn't caught a case of amnesia during his time in Toronto.

Sniffing out big game no problem for hounds

Fate is a notoriously fickle mistress. Thus it was that a middle-aged, soft-handed Ontario newspaper columnist could find himself, one glorious autumn day, lurching and gasping through the Rocky Mountain foothills chasing mountain lions.

Belay that call to the SPCA, ma'am. I'm no hunter. The only weaponry I toted was a notepad, a ballpoint and three Elastoplast bandages in case of foot blisters. Two equally unarmed wildlife biologists and a dog handler named Ralph were in charge of the safari.

Object: battery replacement. One of the cougars they were keeping track of — a three year old female named Angel — was wearing a worn out radio transmitter on a collar around her neck. The biologists hoped to find her and replace the played-out collar with one that would beep for another year or so.

We never did catch up to Angel, but we came close, thanks to Zed and Buford, a couple of bluetick hounds bred and trained to snuffle out big cats and chase them up trees.

They're also good for inducing massive coronaries in unsuspecting newspaper columnists. There I was, staggering and stumbling through the bush behind the experts, marvelling at the splendid Sylvan silence unbroken but for spasmodic columnist wheezes when suddenly all hell broke loose.

The air was shredded by the most ungodly howling and baying caophony this side of an AC/DC concert. It sounded like a herd of Holsteins being fed into a stereophonic garburetor.

With a lunge born of long practice, Ralph loosed his dogs.

"They've got a scent," Ralph explained.

Indeed they had...and it was a marvellous sight to behold.

Zed and Buford, who until now had been plodding straight ahead with the rest of us, were now plunging back

The article in question was written before the government signed an Interim Hunting Agreement with the Algonquins of Golden Lake. Nevertheless, I am pleased to have this opportunity to explain that agreement and to correct some misconceptions.

First, at no time have I or anyone in the Ministry of Natural Resources instructed conservation officers not to prosecute members of the Golden Lake First Nation. In fact, I made it quite clear throughout the negotiating process that until an interim agreement was reached with regard to hunting in Algonquin Park, the province's Interim Enforcement Guidelines would apply. Those guidelines state that where no special agreement exists, aboriginal peoples are subject to charges when hunting or fishing in provincial parks.

Second, I have never suggested the Algonquins of Golden Lake would be granted unlimited rights to hunt in Algonquin Park. The agreement we have negotiated is governed by three fundamental principles; conservation, sound natural resource management, and protection for public safety. With these principles in mind, hunting has been restricted to the remote, northeastern section of the park, from October 15 to January 15, so as to have as little impact as possible on park users. Harvest limits of 100 moose and 175 deer have been set for the entire 14,000 square miles of land the Algonquins of Golden Lake are claiming, an area which includes most of Algonquin Park. These numbers have been deemed biologically sustainable by MNR staff. In addition, the use of ATV's and snowmobiles for hunting is prohibited and the use of motorized vehicles strictly limited to the retrieval of fallen game. Furthermore, in response to concerns raised during public consultation, the Algonquins have agreed not to hunt in areas designated as nature reserves, wilderness zones or historic zones. And the agreement specifically recognizes the need to protect rare, threatened and endangered species, as well as wolves and loons.

Conservation measures will be enforced by a conservation officer who will be hired by the Algonquins and who will work with regular MNR staff. A tribunal established by the Algonquins will adjudicate conservation infractions, while issues of public safety and private property will be enforced by the province.

The entire process will be implemented and monitored by a Coordinating Committee, with equal representation from the Algonquins and Ontario.

Third and perhaps, most important, I would like to clarify how the government became involved in this process.

Far from what your writer describes as a "fit of collective guilt", the decision to commence negotiations with the Algonquins of Golden Lake was made after careful analysis by government staff who have been dealing with this issue since the Algonquins launched their land claim in 1983. Moreover, we are bound by recent decisions by the Supreme Court of Canada recognizing the right of aboriginal peoples to hunt and fish for food beyond the limits prescribed by provincial regulation once conservation and park values have been adequately protected.

Ultimately, the rationale for making these complex negotiations a top priority comes down to a question of political will. This government has committed itself to resolving outstanding issues with our First Nations, issues which, in the case of the Algonquins of Golden Lake, date back more than 200 years.

We intend to move forward and seek to address these historic grievances and to do so in a way which recognizes the best interests of all the people of Ontario.

Formerly idyllic Cardiff needs cleaning up

Editor:

Cardiff Township was the pride of my life when I moved there in the 1960s, into the home-stand of the first reeve. In the 1890s, a fall fair, complete with horse racing, was held in our fields. There was a blacksmith shop, a post office and store and a bunch of helpful neighbours whose descendants were the same when I arrived.

When my tractor was mired in Deer-Lake Ron Mumford rounded up a quarter of a mile of cables and chains from numerous residents to pull that "Scarborough teacher" out. I think it was Carson Bamford who said "tractors can't swim" but he still provided some of the chains.

In the dark cold nights of the Yukon I drew pictures of Cardiff Township scenes and counted off the days until I could come back.

Where else could you leave a key and come back to find a stove and chimney carefully installed during your absence?

The snowplow operator (Tommy Elliott) always made sure not to block my driveway when he went by in winter. Cardiff Township was my dream come true.

But lately - neighbours suing each other, clerk jailed for embezzlement, official records up to 1981 destroyed, reeve suffers heart attack, sudden or unannounced meetings, high priced "consultants" providing shoddy surveys... I hate to think what might be next.

Ron Mumford who is running for Deputy Reeve says finances are completely out of hand, and that Cardiff Township has gone from number one to the laughing stock of the county.

Mumford wants to improve environmental conditions and he wants the province to kick in funds for the purpose. He says there are numerous intelligent and capable persons in Cardiff Township to help him clean up the situation.

He's right, and they will. Less than half the candidates can be elected. The rest of you - and bless your public spirit for running - will still be required to put your shoulders to the wheel along with numerous others hiding in the bushes and closets with their mighty talents.

Let's clean up our Cardiff paradise. Otherwise it's back to Scarborough or to freeze in Dawson City.

Minden's new council will have a big job ahead

Editor's Note: The following is an open letter to the ratepayers of Anson, Hindon and Minden.

Having worked for the above municipality for a number of years, I am still interested in the welfare of our municipality.

This being the third time since retirement that I have made suggestions, the other two both were carried out. One being the bridge on the Petersen Road having to be rebuilt, I suggested we use part of the old road from the Little Boskung road onto the now Highway 118 instead of a new bridge. Second one was the location of the present Minden Village O.P.P. office. Gerald Bain of Stanhope Township can verify the suggestion of not building a bridge as it was a boundary road and the suggestion was made several years ago.

The county has taken over considerable mileage of the roads in our municipality and at present I see where our roads are maintained with three tandem trucks and one single axle one two and a half ton truck, a grader and another way of looking after the sidewalk as well as a larger front end loader, the small tractor and a backhoe.

When I left there some years ago, we had three single axle trucks, one front end loader, one tractor, one half ton.

It seems to me the road mileage is down and the equipment is up - or are the large trucks cheaper to operate?

Why must tragedy prompt action?

Re: Minden Hospital Night-Day Helipad
The Minden hospital got its helipad at last, but only after a murder/suicide that persuaded the Ministry of Health to do something for the area after so many requests.

Accident after accident on our highways, death after death, it seemed to matter less.

Thanks to the Carnarvon group who put the squeeze on the Rae government to do something that has been on the books for several years.

A tremendous vote of thanks should go to Mr. Doug Campbell, because he is the person who did all the legwork over the past few years to get the pad approved by the Ministry of Health and the Board of Transport.

These things don't get done overnight, so let's say thanks to Doug for a job well done!

Scents of lemon and rose are like Muzak to the nose and forth like junkies in a poppy field. Within seconds they had locked onto the cougar's scent, decided which direction it was headed in and taken off after it, baying like bloodhounds on a Blitzkrieg.

I went through a lot of emotions in the Rocky Mountain foothills that afternoon, but the one I felt as I watched Zed and Buford, moist noses to the forest floor homing in on Angel's scent, was pure schnoz envy. How do they do it, I asked myself.

And why can't we?

We had it once. Anthropologists tell us that our ancient ancestors possessed extremely sophisticated noses. Australian aborigines can still smell water where the rest of us would see only parched desert. What a wonderful skill it would be to be able to identify the proximity of relatives, friends, game and enemies, simply by lifting our beaks into the air and sniffing.

Maybe we'll get back to it. Some American store owners are now pumping various scents into the air-conditioning ducts of shopping malls. They think nice smells relax shoppers and put them in the buying mood. Certain Japanese companies use aromas the way North American companies use Muzak. They waft the workplace with the smell of lemons in the morning to wake the workers up; rose at lunch time to calm them down; and various herbal aromas to get them through the traditional afternoon slump.

There's a name for this olfactory manipulation: aromatherapy. Not that it's new. The Japanese have known about it for centuries. The ancient Greeks and Sumerians practised it millennia ago. We could have had it too, if only we'd opened our eyes.

Or rather closed our eyes and opened our nostrils.
Or consulted experts like Zed and Buford.

Minden trustees discuss board's school expansion plan

and would support a public meeting next year to allow the public to review the board's operation.

John Purc

In running for trustee, John Purc said, as a taxpayer, he does not want to limit the education system but would like to see it improved without being held hostage by the costs.

He said escalating education taxes may be putting local businesses at risk.

He favours the idea of holding public referenda for large capital projects and supports a proposal to allow ratepayers to vote on school board budgets.

When the current board made the decision to expand Archie Stouffer, Purc says there should have been some public forum to explain the options to residents and receive their input.

Wally Bunn

With three children of his own in local schools, incumbent trustee Wally Bunn says he has a good day-to-day knowledge of the education system in Haliburton County.

During his three year term as trustee, Bunn said he has been involved in many school board committees including the accommodation committee and the transportation committee, which accounts for $1.7 million of the board's budget.

While serving on the board, Bunn said he has spoken with many parents, teachers, staff and students and believes the school board should operate in an open manner.

After the opening statements, the candidates fielded questions from members of the audience on a variety of issues.

Essential Service

The candidates were asked if they believed education should be declared an essential service which would take away the right of teachers to strike.

Noting that Canada has the highest rate of time lost through strikes, Mills said he favoured arbitration as the preferred method of the resolving labour disputes involving teachers.

Ladurantaye said the local board has a good liaison with its teachers and, although she wouldn't like to see a walkout, she said she didn't think teachers should lose the right to strike.

In a brief answer, Harris said she doesn't believe in strikes, which brought a round of applause from the audience.

While agreeing that education is essential, Wilson said teachers should have some sort of bargaining tool. She also noted that education has not been plagued by many strikes.

Kitcheman said he thinks all strikes in Canada should be outlawed because he believes that people should get paid for the work they do.

Purc said teachers should have the right to strike, but added that with the way income tax is set up, and considering the amount teachers earn, there is no advantage in striking for higher pay.

Bunn said he doesn't think teachers in Haliburton County would go on strike, and said he doesn't think they should be able to.

ASES expansion

The incumbent trustees were asked how they voted on the motion to expand Archie Stouffer Elementary School and the long-term proposal to create a county-wide school for Grades Seven to Nine in Haliburton Village.

Ladurantaye said she didn't vote in favour of the proposal because she is concerned about service to areas in the north of the county.

Bunn, who is co-chairman of the accommodation committee, said he voted in favour of the resolution. Although he admitted the expansion is not the best solution, he said it is preferable to teaching students in portables and the former IGA store.

Wilson said she voted against the expansion and the proposal to create a junior high school in Haliburton. She said she thinks Archie Stouffer is too large and opposes the idea of busing students to Haliburton Village. The decision does not serve the students or the community, said Wilson.

The candidates were also asked whether they thought there was enough input from teachers, parents and the public before making a decision on the new accommodation proposals.

New council will face big problems

It also looks very odd for the new street lights installed a few years ago are not being replaced when they give trouble but are taken down as anyone can see who walks north of the bridge.

Then we see the well situation reported in the paper. Drill a well and cap it for months then say it isn't worth pumping out when the driller offered to do it free of charge.

How does the new housing project expect to get water?

I feel sorry for the new council for they will have a lot of problems to clear up if they are going to balance the budget.

Let's give the new crowd a chance to show us their skill.

J. Earl Hewitt,
Minden.

Masses must govern

Editor:

My apologies to Francine Newton, and "thank you" to L.D. Shekleton.

Yes, L.D.S., you are correct in assuming I did indeed mean Jean Cretien, and of course, my apologies to Mr. Cretien for misspelling his name.

So my point remains. I feel it is time for the masses to start making the choices.

Government by Referendum is a logical step.

If Government by individuals is dissatisfying, then lets try government by the whole.

N. Wiebe
Minden

Wilson said she regrets the fact that there was not more public input and said the options were presented to the trustees only a short time before the vote.

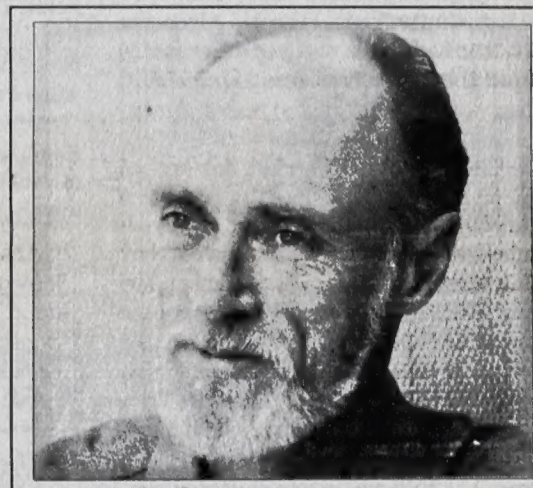

The other candidates agreed that there should have been more open discussion and an opportunity for public feedback before the decision was made.

Bank officially re-opens

The recently expanded Toronto Dominion Bank in Minden was officially re-opened during a brief ceremony last Wednesday. Minden Reeve Bern Berry cut the ribbon, assisted by branch manager Paul Norrie, far right, and James Hudson, who is an executive vice-president with Toronto Dominion. The renovations, which were completed at the end of September, added about 1,000 square feet to the bank and a Green Machine instant teller was installed at the same time. Norrie says the bank needed the additional space to accommodate a staff which has grown from four people to more than 10 since the branch opened in 1978.

Teachers survey trustee hopefuls

Like many other groups in the county, the members of the three teacher associations have taken a keen interest in the upcoming municipal election. In particular, the groups' political action committee has undertaken a survey of the candidates for position of trustees on the board of education.

The survey was circulated to the candidates, including those who were acclaimed to office. The candidates were asked a series of questions pertaining to education policy and philosophy as it pertains to the local board. While the teachers' committee acknowledged that the cost of education was a major concern to all ratepayers, they felt the issue of taxes was being addressed by other groups in the county and so concentrated on non-monetary concerns.

The following is a brief synopsis of the answers the candidates and acclaimed trustees in Anson, Hindon and Minden, Lutterworth, Snowdon, Stanhope and Sherbourne et al provided to the committee. The complete responses of the candidates will be available for the public to examine at a special meeting for trustee candidates from these municipalities. That meeting is scheduled for November 7 at Archie Stouffer Elementary School beginning at 7:30 p.m. A similar meeting for trustee candidates from the eastern portion of the county will be held November 6 at the J.D. Hodgson Elementary School in Haliburton. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The committee did not receive replies from the following candidates: Cheryl Murdoch, acclaimed in Lutterworth Township; John Munro acclaimed in Sherbourne et

by Susan Grober

Minden resident Judy Stevenson was flown from Baltimore by air ambulance to Toronto Western Hospital last Friday morning.

"She's holding her own," her brother, Garwood Stevenson, told The Times Friday afternoon.

Stevenson's temperature has been normal for the past week or so, although she had a mild fever upon arriving in Toronto.

"It could have just been the trip that made it go up," said Garwood. "But she seems to be coming along fine other than that."

Stevenson has endured quite an ordeal since traveling to John Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Maryland for an operation to straighten her spine in late September.

Since the procedure was performed, Stevenson has suffered a raging fever, and had more operations — one finding an infection where the steel rod was placed in her back, and another to treat a bleeding ulcer.

And Stevenson suffered heart failure a couple of weeks ago after she was taken off life support. "They had to restart her heart," said Garwood.

Although she is back on a life support system, the amount of oxygen Stevenson has been receiving has been cut way down, said

Garwood. "She breathes more on her own now than on the machine."

But, because of the tubes down her throat, Stevenson can't talk. Still, she does manage to respond to others around her.

Although things looked pretty grim for awhile, Garwood said his sister's condition has seen much improvement.

"She's picking up a little bit at a time," he said. "And at least now we can see her more often in Toronto."

The Stevenson family just found out Wednesday she could be brought back to Canada.

The helicopter arrived from Toronto to transport Stevenson, her mother Velma, and her aunt, Lois Berry.

"She can get the same treatment here in Canada as she could there, so they moved her back," said Garwood.

Stevenson had to travel to the United States for the initial operation on her back, which is affected by severe osteoporosis, because it isn't available in Canada.

Since OHIP only covers a portion of medical costs incurred in the United States, Stevenson needed at least $4,500 American to pay for the procedure.

This summer, members of the community helped raise the money through the "Operation Judy Fund."

issues fairly. She is against market value assessment and believes a fresh approach to municipal fiscal policy is needed during tough economic times.

Gerald Rome

While admitting he has no previous political experience, Gerald Rome said his background would be valuable on council.

Rome was employed as the manager at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Minden for 13 years and has also been involved in a number of community organizations including the Lions, the Optimist Club, Rotary, Home Support and the Staunworth Non-Profit Housing Corporation.

He said, if elected, he would work to achieve fiscal responsibility in Minden and would support and freeze on municipal tax increases.

Francine Newton

A new arrival in Haliburton County, Francine Newton said voters have a difficult task this year because they are choosing from among five first-time candidates for the three councillor positions.

A native of Belgium, Newton moved to Canada when she was five-years-old and has recently been involved with community projects in the Town of Newcastle and Durham Region.

As the acting post-master in Hampton, she was involved in the successful fight to keep that post office open and also served as a returning officer during the 1987 and 1990 provincial elections.

(The candidates for reeve and deputy-reeve have already been profiled in previous issues of The Times, so their opening statements will not be repeated as part of the candidates meeting coverage.)

After the speeches, written questions were submitted by the audience for consideration by the candidates.

Market value assessment

Each of the five candidates for the positions of councillor were asked for their position on the proposed market value re-assessment of Haliburton County.

None of the candidates expressed support for the proposal but agreed that even if the re-assessment is rejected by the county it will eventually be imposed by the provincial government.

Community events

The candidates for reeve and deputy-reeve were asked whether or not they support large events such as the Ride for Sight, which was held in Minden until two years ago.

Ray Moore, who is running for reeve, said he is a strong proponent for such events which he said benefits the businesses which pay taxes and provide jobs.

Incumbent reeve Bern Berry said Minden would still be home for the Ride for Sight if there was any suitable location. With the creation of a new ball diamond on the fair grounds, Berry said council was afraid that the weekend event, which attracted thousands of motorcycle riders, would result in damage to the new facilities. He said he supports such events as long as there is no potential for harm.

Deputy-reeve candidate Lewis Stevens said he would support any organization that brings that much traffic into the area with far-reaching benefits. He said he believes any problems associated with such events can be worked out.

Reeve candidate Verne Graham said he would also support any event which brings people into the area and used the Minden Sled Dog Derby as an example of the kind of year-round projects the municipality needs.

Bob Sisson, who is running against Stevens for the deputy-reeve's position said is in favour of these events as long as there are no unreasonable costs to the taxpayers.

Ron Gambell, the fourth candidate for reeve, said Minden needs to have events like the Ride for Sight and the best partner business people can have is council.

Gambell was then asked why he was absent from the candidates meeting sponsored by the tax coalition two weeks ago. Gambell said he would not "subject myself to that abuse", an answer which did not sit well with many people in the audience, judging from their reaction.

Landfill access

The recent enactment of a council policy which restricts access to municipal land-fill sites by non-residents was questioned.

Defending the policy, Berry said council unanimously approved the measure as a way to reduce costs. He said maybe it is time that smaller municipalities starting providing services to their residents including dumps, fire protection and recreational facilities.

Anthon suggested that a better solution may be to establish a user-pay system which would allow non-resident access to the landfills providing they pay for the service.

Garbutt said he doesn't like the idea of the restricted access because some residents of Anson, Hindon and Minden use land-fills in other municipalities which are closer to their homes.

Moore said with the county's waste management study underway, the county will probably be assuming control over all land-fill sites and he doesn't see the need to limit access.

Graham said the decision to limit access was made before he was appointed to council in May.

New bridge

There was considerable discussion about council's decision to reject an offer by the transportation ministry to share the cost of a study which would address the issue of another bridge over the Gull River.

Moore, who has been a supporter of a second bridge, said he was "flabbergasted" when council rejected the study.

Berry said the study was turned down as part of council's efforts to keep spending to a minimum. He said neither the county or Lutterworth Township, which would also be affected by the proposed bridge, were willing to contribute to the cost of the study.

The reeve also said that the ministry wanted to include Highway 35 in the study and he felt it was an attempt to further restrict entrances onto the highway which would affect growth.

Stevens said the proposal for another bridge is still possible, but the study was too expensive given council's attempt at fiscal responsibility. He said the idea will probably resurface in the future.

Sisson agreed that cost was the factor which killed the study. He said council set a price limit they felt was reasonable but during the summer the cost of the study doubled.

Graham said the number of cars passing through Minden is about 600 a day and the transportation ministry start looking at the idea for another bridge once the traffic flow increases to 6000 cars a day.

The other candidates agreed that although the idea of another bridge is attractive, the cost of such a project is prohibitive.

Dysart candidates concerned with rising taxes

Taxes appeared to be on the mind of just about everyone who attended the all candidates meeting Tuesday evening at the Legion Hall in Haliburton.

Sponsored by the Haliburton County Echo in co-operation with the municipality of Dysart et al, the forum gave Haliburton council and board of education candidates an opportunity to present their platforms to the public and answer questions on their candidacies.

In just about every opening statement of offered by the candidates, reference was made to the increasing local tax burden. And, as often as they mentioned it, the candidates offered to work hard to keep tax increases to the rate of inflation, or bring in budgets that were less than that amount. However, among the hopefuls, particularly those who were incumbents, the statement was usually qualified by references to expenses that were beyond the control of elected officials and mandated provincial programs.

The questions from the audience also reflected the public's concerns with the rising tax rates. The comments included questions on how tax dollars had been spent in the past and probed each candidate's stand on the introduction of new programs and policies which would likely result in increased spending.

The exchanges between the candidates and the audience were generally restrained, often with all candidates for an office expressing close to identical views on certain issues.

First to address the crowd were the candidates for the board of education. Six candidates are seeking the four seats at the board table. The following are comments gleaned from each of their remarks, presented in the order in which they spoke to the audience:

— Tim Casey: Elected three years ago on a reform platform, he admitted there were still some concerns from his initial campaign that had yet to be addressed. He said he was surprised to learn that only 20 per cent of the board's $15 million budget is in fact under local control. He said he supported the planned school expansion announced last week.

— Cheryl Howe: She feels her 22 years in financial management would be an asset to serving on the board. She said she felt teacher benefits are out-of-line with the provincial average, and teachers would have to "bite the bullet," because no one else in the county will be expecting to receive a wage increase in the coming years. She favours an "open administration."

— Julia Robertson: A native of the area, she pointed out she has two children currently in the school system. She said she wanted to represent the concerns of parents on the board, and get value for tax dollars spent.

— Nancy Stinson: A graduate of the local school system, she has served for 13 years on the board. She said she has no particular platform to offer but is concerned about taxes, "I am a taxpayer here, too." However, she also said she cannot promise a budget that won't increase taxes. She said the province must be informed of the local objection to the introduction of junior kindergarten.

— Len Salvatori: Pointed out he had served 30 years on the board and a number of terms as chairman. He noted grants from the provincial government have dropped 4 per cent. Citing figures from nearby jurisdictions, he said the cost per student in Haliburton County is at the average or below: in Haliburton County it costs $5900 to educate each student per year; Victoria County, $5673; Renfrew County, $6300; Parry Sound, $6500. He said the local salaries are within the provincial average, the student/teacher ratio is average. The introduction of GST has cost the board $100,000.

— Wayne Wood: He said he's proud to be a part of a team which has brought a high quality of education to the county. Decreasing provincial grants make it difficult to maintain those standards. "The cost of introducing junior kindergarten will be staggering," and he finds it difficult to support this program.

Council candidates

The following are comments from the candidates, and those acclaimed to the council seats.

— Laurie Bonfield, acclaimed in Ward One: She was surprised at her acclamation, expressed concern over the growing tax burden, and said every effort must be made to preserve and enhance the municipality's number one industry, tourism. To the position, she brings her experience as an independent business owner, her service on the Business Improvement Area board of directors and her experience in dealing with people.

— Jerry Walker, acclaimed in Ward Two: He said he is looking forward to the learning experience offered by his seat on council. He will make the following his major concerns: the environment, health care beds and the provision of municipal service. He would like to see more growth in the municipalities, while getting the best value for the tax dollars spent.

— Lloyd Leadbeater, Ward 3: He originally decided to give someone else a chance to serve, however when he saw only one other

County Official Plan

The proposed county official plan was given a rough ride by the candidates for reeve and deputy-reeve with Moore as the only one who still supports the idea of proceeding with the document.

All the other candidates said the county official plan is a low priority and should be put on hold until after the county is restructured and all municipalities have their own official plans.

Moore said a county-wide plan is necessary as a guideline for county development and to cover those townships which can't afford to develop their own documents. "Unfortunately,

I stand alone, but it is not the first time," he said.

Chamber funding

There was more agreement among the candidates on whether the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce should be financially supported by the county or not. While all the said there should be some financial contribution to the Chamber, Berry and Stevens both said the business community must also contribute its fair share. Neither candidate offered an explanation of what constitutes a fair share.

The level of voter interest during this election was evident in the issue-oriented questions which were asked. The audience was also very vocal when it came to expressing support or opposition to a given position.

well as the situation concerning the 18 bed addition to the Haliburton Hospital. "I wish someone would write us a cheque and let us get the job done," he said referring to the hospital.

— Tom Cogan, Ward Three: A Harcourt resident for 19 years where he worked with Martin Lumber, Cogan said he knows the area well, and since he is now semi-retired has the time and energy to devote to the job. He has worked for a number of government agencies and, "while new to municipal politics, I am familiar with governments."

— Brian Watts, acclaimed Ward Four: He thanked the members of the last council for their efforts and said he was willing to help people with their problems.

— Robert Heinze, Ward Five: A resident of Haliburton Lake for the past five years he has recognized a desire among the voters for change. "Let it start here," he said. He is totally against the introduction of market value re-assessment but is willing to listen to the options and feels the public should have some input on the question. Feels the municipality should operate on zero-based budgeting, that there should be better value for the dollars spent on roads, representatives of the public should be involved in the planning process and that the potential of establishing a recycling centre in Dysart should be examined.

— Larry Tupling, Ward Five: A resident of Haliburton Lake for five years, he is opposed to market value re-assessment, supports keeping taxes under control, believes the Chamber of Commerce must be supported with public funds, and feels that local landfill sites should be maintained with hours that reflect the need of seasonal property owners.

Deputy-reeve Candidates

— Curry Bishop: A fourth generation resident, he has recently retired from his business as a land surveyor, a position which has gave him a good knowledge of the area. He believes a ceiling is need on expenditures and said, "Planning is expropriation without compensation." Any planning process must include a careful examination of all the ramifications. He said he favoured the expansion of the Haliburton Hospital and the community's sewage treatment plant.

— Bob Nicholl: Presently a councillor, Nicholl noted these are harsh economic times in which the province has made cutbacks which have affected the municipality. He predicted the hospital expansion promised by the NDP government during their election campaign will not come to pass. He said the council must show leadership and confidence so the business community will be will-

Monstrous monkeying around

Mrs. Forgrave's Grade 1 class met the Gum Drop Monster on Halloween at the Archie Stouffer Elementary School annex. Over the past few weeks, the class has corresponded with the monster (known as GDM), who has left them clues about his identity. The class even built a trap to catch him, but it was too small for him to fit inside. But the mystery was finally solved when the candy-loving creature made an appearance last Thursday, and presented them with a supply of gum drops.

MOORE R.H. (RAY) (X)

Tuesday, November 12 - VOTE
RAY MOORE for REEVE

• Most Experienced Candidate

• Business Oriented

• Approachable and Caring

After verifying with my doctor and my wife, I am too young to retire, too full of positive energy and a wealth of current political knowledge to sit and watch the world go by.

I thank my supporters for their confidence and encouragement. I love people and am always happiest when serving and working to help people in all walks of life. While healing, I have read, studied and listened to what is being said by the Tax Coalition, our seasonal residents, our business leaders, the Chamber of Commerce, and especially what is being said by county and local councillors. What I have been hearing is most depressing.....doom, gloom, negatives and more negatives. Should we study the problems for the next three years? Absolutely not!

What I have found to be reasonably successful has been to think positive, recognize the problem or opportunity, then take action and do something about it. In my opinion what we need right now is people with ideas, with ways and means of getting more "bang" for our tax dollars, and with a vision of where we are going, and how to get there. The opportunity is here, now, to rid ourselves of negative nay-sayers, and people afraid to make decisions.

I applaud the efforts of the "Tax Coalition". I feel the ripple effects will finally filter down to the empire building bureaucrats, the real spenders, who don't have to answer to the public.

I am amazed at the announcement that we are spending $50,000.00 for another study to find another source of water supply, without any public debate. My understanding is that our costs have gone up from $120,000.00 to $500,000.00 Wow! Who is responsible for the purchase of a new $120,000.00 truck which was not needed, plus the Roads budget, which was overspent by $100,000.00? When I went on vacation the community centre addition estimates were $250,000.00. Why are the costs now $470,000.00? Why are we paying $80,000.00 for architect and engineering plans for this building? All of the above has happened in the past eight months. How can we afford to let this kind of administration continue?

In my view the municipality's infrastructure is in reasonably good shape. Our debt load is not out of hand yet. The positive signs of growth activity are very encouraging. The T.D. addition, CIBC addition, Paul and Don's new Main Street building, Dave's on 35, Frontier's new building, new supportive housing, plans for new assisted seniors housing, new Bell lines, new hydro substations. This is all new assessment helping to pay the taxes, and create jobs. In my opinion, a proper managed growth via an official plan is better than uncontrolled willy nilly development.

Give me a diversified positive thinking council, and many of the problems can be solved. We don't need to dwell on the negatives or the past; look optimistically to the future.

MOORE R.H. (RAY) (X)

Laxton, Somerville, and Galway residents take to the polls

by Jerry Grozelle

Within the coverage area of The Times are the northern townships of Victoria County. The six townships represent three ridings: the united townships of Laxton, Digby and Longford; Galway-Cavendish; and Somerville. As a service to the readers within these northern townships The Times is presenting profiles of the candidates for Reeve and Deputy-Reeve of these ridings.

Laxton, Digby and Longford

The united townships of Laxton, Digby and Longford have four candidates vying for the position of Reeve of the riding. Bradley Bradamore, Douglas Horton and Norm McMaster will be trying to unseat incumbent Ingram Wessell.

Running for Deputy-Reeve are Thomas Allen and Mike Riordon.

Some of the issues raised by the candidates in this riding include: concerns that the current council may not be working as efficiently as it could be because of "infighting and personality conflicts"; claims of excessive overtime payments to township staff; how to best utilize the now vacant Post Office and the soon-to-be closed school in Norland; and how the taxpayers' dollars could be put to the best use.

Brad Bradamore

Born and raised in the area, Brad Bradamore is no stranger to the workings of municipal politics. Although he has never run for office before, the 38-year-old Norland resident has 15 years of municipal experience. He was the chief building official and bylaw enforcement officer for Laxton, Digby and Longford for seven years. He has also served in a similar capacity in Lindsay, Port Hope, Flamborough and the Townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden.

"I've taken courses in municipal law and I have 15 certificates," Bradamore said.

When Bradamore was contacted a week ago, he said that he had a list of 41 items that he would like to see implemented if elected as Reeve of the riding. He added the list continues to grow as he talks to the constituents during his door-to-door campaign.

Among those items at the top of his list is the utilization of two buildings in Norland which are either currently vacant or soon to be so.

"I'd like to turn the old post office into a medical centre and get a doctor into town," he said. To accomplish that goal, he said he would approach local service clubs, provincial and federal representatives as well as lobby for government grants to keep the burden to the local taxpayers as low as possible. "I'm willing to do whatever footwork is necessary," he explained.

Bradamore would like to see the school in Norland turned into a senior citizens' facility when the new school is finished in Coboconk and the local pupils are bused there. He is convinced that such a facility would be a boon to the area, creating numerous jobs.

Election '91

A small industrial park to create more employment in the area and recycle bins at the landfill site to increase its longevity also top Bradamore's priorities.

Bradamore is self-employed — Bradamore Planning and Design Consultant — and when time permits he sells used cars.

The candidate for Reeve says that if he is elected he will be available at the township office Saturday mornings from 9:00 to 11:00 (with the coffee pot on) to hear the concerns of the constituents.

He feels that "things have been non-productive" with the current administration. "I just want to make things happen for the people," he concluded.

Doug Horton

"I'll be running on a theme of fiscal responsibility," said candidate for Reeve, Doug Horton.

The Norland resident served as a Councillor for Laxton, Digby and Longford for two terms, from 1982 to 1988. Combined with his previous municipal politics experience and his 25-year background as Circulation Manager for the Globe and Mail, Horton feels amply qualified to take on the fiscal problems facing the riding.

"I'm also very concerned with waste management," Horton explained.

He is especially concerned about the long-term future of the landfill site if responsibility for waste management is turned over to the County of Victoria.

"We only know what they (County officials) plan for the first year, not beyond that," he cautioned. "We don't want garbage from all over the county hauled up here."

Horton recognizes the value of tourism to the area. As a former cottager who is retired to this area, he says he would work toward making it more feasible for people to move to the area when they retire. His reasoning is that with more retired people in the area, there would be more services required, creating more jobs.

During his tenure as a Councillor, Horton served as a representative of the Ontario Home Renewal Program (OHRP). The OHRP involves provincial funding for upgrading properties. He was also a member of the riding's roads and fire committees.

Horton is actively involved with the Norland Area Senior Citizens' Club. He is a past president of the organization.

The Horton family moved to Norland in 1980 and for 10 years before that were cottagers in the area.

Norm McMaster

Running for Reeve of Laxton, Digby and Longford is a natural progression for Norm McMaster. He is currently finishing out a term as Deputy-Reeve of the riding and before that, he was a Councillor for three years.

"You have to move up or step out," is McMaster's philosophy.

While he served on municipal council he was a member of the recreation and waste disposal committees.

Among McMaster's major concerns is "the way our tax dollars are utilized; how they are spent; where they go." He is not convinced that the taxpayers of the riding are getting full value for their money.

"I'd like to see our tax dollars spent more prudently," McMaster said. "There could be some changes."

Among those changes, McMaster said that he would like to see more control over the township's staff. He thinks too much is being paid in overtime.

"We pay out a lot of money for overtime and I'd like to see some justification for it," he complained. "Everybody has to pull their own weight."

"There isn't a boss in the township. They (municipal employees) don't seem to have anybody to answer to."

McMaster stated that he's heard rumors that at least two township employees have vowed to quit if he's elected as Reeve.

Losses in Laxton concern council candidates

(from page 14)

The outgoing Deputy-Reeve would also like to see better representation on County Council. He's concerned about waste management and he feels that a lot of money is being spent on recreation, without much to show for it.

McMaster is not a lifelong resident of the riding. "I moved here to the township," he said. "I've committed myself to the township. I run my business here."

He is a 15-year resident of Norland and was a cottager in the area for 10 years before that. McMaster is a contractor, whose business is about 95 per cent government projects.

Ingram Wessell

The loss of the Post Office, the impending closing of the school and the loss of the school board representative and the proposed takeover of the landfill site are among the concerns of incumbent Reeve Ingram Wessell.

The Reeve of the past three years plans to make the best of at least one of these situations by proposing that the school building be purchased and turned into a new township office and library.

Wessell is strongly opposed to the takeover of the landfill site by the County of Victoria. He fears that the township will lose control over how the site is used and where the garbage comes from. He hopes that those who share his opposition to the takeover will constitute the two-thirds vote that will be necessary to defeat the proposal.

Improvement of the riding's roads is a priority on Wessell's agenda.

"Our roads are very important," Wessell said. "It's one area where we can give something back to the taxpayers."

Wessell feels that cottagers in the area are responsible for a substantial amount of the revenue generated in the riding. "Cottagers are one of our main industries," he said.

Although he lives just over the Haliburton boundary, Wessell has substantial land holdings and gravel pits within the Laxton, Digby and Longford riding. "My business is run out of Laxton," Wessell explained.

Along with his experience as Reeve of this riding, Wessell served as a Councillor for Lutterworth Township for two consecutive terms during the 1970s. He has served on the municipality's roads committee and on the Victoria County Council's library committee.

"I've always been interested and concerned about municipal politics," Wessell explained. "I'm there to be of help to both the local people and cottagers. I'll be there to answer questions at all times and to fight for the people of Laxton, Digby and Longford."

Thomas Allen

Deputy-Reeve candidate Tom Allen is hoping to move up the ladder with the coming election. Allen has served as a Councillor in the Laxton, Digby and Longford riding for three years.

During his tenure as Councillor, Allen has served on the roads committee, the fire committee and chaired the recreation board last year. He is also a volunteer firefighter.

Allen has lived in Digby Township on Head Lake for one year and in Laxton for 5-6 years prior. Before that, he was a cottager in the area for 10 years.

The Deputy-Reeve hopeful is manager of Highland Ice Supply in Orillia.

"I've thoroughly enjoyed my term as Councillor," Allen said.

Allen predicts a number of changes in council personnel with the coming election, citing infighting among the current council as a destructive force.

"There could be a lot of new people and I hope to be there to provide some continuity," he said. "I'd get rid of some infighting and help to make sure we're providing good, knowledgeable government."

Controlling taxes and making sure the money is spent wisely is important to the Deputy-Reeve candidate.

When the Norland school is vacated, Allen is in favour of using the building as a township office and as a facility that could be used by area groups such as the Norland Area Senior Citizen's Club and others.

Allen says there is a perceived notion that the people of Norland and the people of Head Lake don't often see eye-to-eye. But he vows to do his best to "provide responsible government for all of the people".

"You can't be one-sided about anything," he concluded.

Mike Riordon

Mike Riordon of Head Lake has thrown his hat into the ring after an absence of three years. Riordon served the Laxton, Digby and Longford riding for three terms, one as Councillor and two as Deputy-Reeve. He was unsuccessful in his bid for the Reeve's chair in the last election.

"I'm very unhappy about what's been happening over the past three years," Riordon said.

He is especially concerned about "the way township money is being spent; the infighting and personality clashes (among members of the current administration) and the number of extra meetings that are being held."

As far as the personality conflicts are concerned, Riordon says that they have "got completely out of hand", and if he is elected he'll do his best to put a stop to it.

Riordon said that the township has held 35 extra meetings over the past term, which, according to his figures, cost the ratepayers an additional $13,000. He suggested that Councillors could attend the 18 regular meetings of council half an hour earlier to deal with such matters as minor severances, eliminating the need for many of those extra meetings.

He is also opposed to the amount of overtime that is being paid to township employees.

"They (the township) have spent $12,000 in overtime since January," Riordon stated. "In the past, township employees have been happy to take time off in lieu of overtime and I'm sure most of them would rather have it the old way."

Riordon has been a contractor since he moved to the area 22 years ago. He has been a property owner in the riding for 42 years. He worked for the Municipality of North York before moving to this area.

The Deputy-Reeve candidate expects to see a lot of changes when the ballots are counted.

"I've never seen as much interest in an election as there is this year," Riordon said. "Everybody is upset with what's going on."

But one thing isn't about to change, according to Riordon. "I've been very outspoken on council," he said. "That's not going to change."

Somerville

Somerville Township's race for the Reeve's chair is a three-way proposition. Incumbent Bryce Young will be defending his seat against Gary Traill and John Huke.

Current Deputy-Reeve Sue Douglas will have one opponent, David Austin.

As in every other municipality, taxes, and how they can be kept to a minimum, are a concern in Somerville. Lot levies are also foremost in the minds of some of the candidates and to some, waste management and recycling in the township are in need of some rethinking.

Bryce Young

Incumbent Reeve Bryce Young has served three terms on Somerville Township Council. He was Deputy-Reeve for six years before stepping up to the Reeve's chair in the last election. He was acclaimed as Reeve in 1988.

Born and raised in the township, Young returned to his roots after retiring from a career in business administration and industrial management. He was Vice-President and director of Leigh Instruments, an aviation electronics company near Ottawa before he retired in 1978.

Young is currently the Warden of Victoria. This is his second term in that capacity, having been elected to that position in 1987 as well. He also served a three-year term with the association of Counties and Regions of Ontario, a position he says he may seek if he is re-elected as Somerville Reeve.

One of Young's priorities is to create employment (more on page 17) al; Norm Mills candidate in Anson, Hindon and Minden; Leroy Eager and Trevor Pawson candidates in Stanhope Township.

Those who responded to the questionnaire included: from the municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden, Wally Bunn, Marian Harris, Wendy Ladurantaye, John Purc, Mike Kitcheman and Mary-Anne Wilson; and from Snowdon Township, Elsa Louise May who was acclaimed.

The candidates were given a range of student population figures and asked to say which would be most appropriate for an elementary school, and provide reasons. Bunn said 450-600 range adding that above 500 students the personal touch is lost. Harris opted for 300-450 size stating it provided an efficient size without students feeling they were "swallowed up in the system." Ladurantaye suggested 300 to 500, but no higher. She said medium sized schools can offer a broad range of programs, be manageable but not lose the personal touch. Purc suggested a 600-1000 range. He said larger schools are more cost effective and that teacher would be closer in a larger school. Wilson opted for schools under 500 population. She admitted they would be less cost efficient but that decentralizing the school system would reduce the lengthy bus rides and create the best atmosphere for students, staff and administration.

The candidates were asked if they felt the elementary schools should remain as they are, kindergarten to grade eight, or if a senior elementary school, covering grades 7, 8 and 9 should be introduced. Wilson saw value in the mixing of students of differing age groups and again expressed concern about the length of bus rides the senior students would have to take. Purc said the board should make its decision on what is "realistic" and the facilities which are available. Ladurantaye, while stating it was not a stand she has taken, said she saw merit in grouping grades 7, 8 and 9 in a separate school where the special needs of the students in "transition years" could be addressed. Harris said the division should not take place unless there is no other option in the matter. She said there was value in keeping the older students in familiar surroundings as they mature. Bunn said the split should be made as discipline of the senior students would be easier in their own setting.

The candidates were asked if they felt the proposal to enlarge Archie Stouffer Elementary School was the best solution to the accommodation problem. Bunn, who chaired the ASES accommodation committee, felt it was the best solution. Harris felt the decision was not the best although it was better than having students in portable classrooms and a different building. She said it would be better to build another school in a central location. Ladurantaye said she is not convinced the addition to the school, which will mean a school population of 800, is the best answer. She added the construction of a senior elementary school in Haliburton Village is also being considered and this could help alleviate overcrowding in Minden. She pointed out however that this option created other problems such as long bus rides, and did not address the needs of students in the northern portions of the county. Purc said he needed more information, but suggested the accommodation problem might be addressed by making use of the schools on a year-round basis. Kitcheman said he wasn't sure if it was the best solution, but suggested it could be the only answer at the moment because of fiscal restraint. He suggested as well the schools should be used on a year-round basis. Wilson said she felt the addition was not the ideal solution to the problem and suggested a new school should be built north-east of Minden to relieve over-crowding at the Minden and Haliburton schools.

The questionnaire pointed out that current board policy is that at least 75% of a class should participate in any field trip or it should be reconsidered. The candidates were asked whether they favoured this figure and what their feelings were on field trips. Bunn was satisfied with the current policy and found educational opportunity in the field trips. Harris said the 75% figure should be reconsidered, but that a definite majority of the students should be required for any trip. She felt school trips offered an excellent learning experience and exposes students to things they may not otherwise have an opportunity to see. Ladurantaye said the 75% figure was a guideline and that if participation is under that amount the trip should not be automatically cancelled. She favours school trips, noting that learning does just not take place in school and "experience is still a great teacher." Purc was not in favour of the 75% guideline but suggested the students should fund a portion of the trip themselves and that the trips take place outside of school time. He said field trips offer a healthy experience and broaden students' horizons. Kitcheman said the idea of field trips should be reconsidered, especially from the point of view that some families cannot afford them. He also expressed favour with "educational field trips," but the cost should be an important factor. Wilson commented she strongly supported the concept of field trips because of what they can add to the local curriculum. She said she has fond memories of a number of her own field trips. May said the trips are useful to the students.

The candidates were asked to offer their opinions on the introduction of mandatory junior kindergarten as proposed by the provincial government. Wilson said the board should resist the idea because it is too costly to implement. Kitcheman said the board should refuse to participate. Purc predicted the implementation would not take place and felt the local economy could not support the additional expense. Ladurantaye expected junior kindergarten to cost the county $1 million to start and at least half of that to maintain after the first year. She said it would be difficult to bus children that young as far as would be required in Haliburton County. "All I can picture is wet pants and sad eyes," Harris said the idea should be rejected since it is not essential and the board lacks the funds and space to accommodate it. She suggested the board could distribute a booklet to parents encouraging them to take an active role in the early development of their children prior to entering kindergarten. Bunn rejected the idea saying the costs were too high and it would be difficult to maintain regular attendance for a child of that age.

A number of other questions were asked of the candidates. As mentioned earlier, complete copies of their responses will be available at the two special trustee candidates meetings.

Somerville residents fed-up with high taxes within his township. As a member of the board of directors of the Seniors' Supportive Housing Complex, he expects some jobs to be created when it starts operation early in 1992.

"I look forward to the opening of the seniors' housing complex," he said.

Another project Young is working on is a vacant building that he and some others are trying to encourage a company to open an operation in, creating more jobs for local people. "I'm helping to get something going there," he said.

Young says that the Victoria County Development Corporation may be able to help in the area of job creation. The VCDC's mandate is to assist new companies to get going and established companies to expand.

On the issue of taxes, Young says: "We need a strong, experienced voice to influence where our tax dollars are going."

Although upper tier governments seem to be dumping costs on the municipal taxpayers, Young said that Somerville Township is in pretty good shape financially at the moment.

Gary Traill

First-time candidate Gary Traill figures the best place to start in municipal politics is at the top. He has tossed his hat in the race for the Reeve's seat.

"I don't like the way our politicians are running our township," he said. That was the main influence in his decision to run for the office.

Traill is a relative newcomer to Somerville Township, having moved there from Lindsay in 1989.

"I've been in sales and management in the food service industry all my life," Traill explained. He worked his way up the ladder in the dairy industry, starting as a sales representative and finally becoming a divisional manager. He now works independently — a freelancer in the field.

Traill feels his inexperience in the political arena is a definite asset. "I can offer a fresh, unbiased approach," he explained. "I think my business experience more than qualifies me to run the budget of the township."

Besides taxes, Traill says recycling is among his priorities. "We're the laughing stock of Victoria County when it comes to recycling. Everybody else is thinking about the 3-Rs while our people are taking everything to the dump."

Traill doesn't think Somerville should allow Victoria County to take over the landfill site, stating that the life expectancy of the current site is 60-70 years. "But if the County takes it over we'll be lucky to get five years out of it."

Lot levies are also a sore spot for the Reeve candidate. He feels that in these tough economic times, an increase to a maximum of $3,471 is counter-productive. "We don't have anything in Somerville to attract people as it is," he complained.

In conclusion, Traill says: "If I'm elected, I intend to make a full time commitment to the position of Reeve. I'll devote 100 per cent of my time."

John Huke

One term as Councillor of Somerville Township in the early 1980s proved to be a frustrating experience for John Huke. In an attempt to do something about the situation, Huke ran for Reeve, but was unsuccessful. He is determined to give it another shot this time.

A permanent resident of the township for 15 years, Huke has owned property here since 1963.

"Taxes are number one on the hit parade," Huke said. "People are getting fed up."

Huke doesn't think the township's tax revenues are being allocated properly, citing 24.5 per cent allotted for firefighting. "That's an excessive amount for a rural community," he said.

Huke is not alone in his belief that an increase in lot levies could spell disaster. "The Board of Education and the County have the right to the same amount as the township," he pointed out. "Builders could be looking at more than $9,000 for a building permit."

The candidate for Reeve says that he is not endorsed or sponsored by any groups, ratepayers or contractors although he has been approached and offered campaign contributions. "My advertising comes out of my own piggybank."

Huke's main campaign promise is to say no to tax increases at the municipal level and to make council more accessible.

Sue Douglas

Sue Douglas, who resides on the shore of Four Mile Lake, is seeking her second term as Deputy-Reeve of Somerville Township. She has been a Councillor in the township for two terms as well, bringing her total service on council to nine years.

She has been a permanent resident of the area for 17 years and a cottager for about 35 years before that.

Before she was married, Douglas worked in the hospitality industry and after her children were raised, she worked at retail food outlets in Lindsay and Cobocok.

When she retired, Douglas turned to politics because she was interested in serving the public.

"There aren't that many really pressing issues," Douglas said. "Except keeping tax increases as small as possible through very careful budgeting and administration."

Douglas says that she would like to see the township have more control over the Board of Education, but admits that she doesn't know how that could be accomplished.

If it were financially feasible, Douglas would like to see the Burnt River school turned into a library or fire hall or post office when it is vacated.

"The school in Kinmount would make a good medical centre," she added.

During her tenure on Somerville council, Douglas has served on several committees, including roads, fire, finance, grants, library, personnel, community centre (more on page 18)

Reeve candidates disagree on Galway issues

and recreation association. As Deputy-Reeve, she has also sat on County Council and found it to be a "learning experience." She has served on the County's social services and board of management committees. She has been Victoria County's representative for the Kawartha-Haliburton Children's Aid Society.

Overall, Douglas says she's happy with the direction council has taken in the past. "We've tried to run a good ship."

She plans to maintain an open-door policy and enjoys being involved with the people in the municipality.

David Austin

David Austin has one campaign under his belt and although he was unsuccessful in his bid for the Deputy-Reeve seat last term, he's optimistic about his chances this time.

Born and raised in the area, Austin worked in Toronto for about 10 years before moving back in 1984. He is a contractor, living in Norland on the Somerville side of the Gull River.

Austin feels that the residents of Somerville are not getting value for their education dollars. (Two schools in Somerville — at Kinmount and Burnt River — are being closed and pupils will be bused out of the township.)

On County restructuring, Austin says: "The little guys are going to have to band together and stick up for ourselves."

Austin says he doesn't think the things they do in places like Toronto are necessarily the appropriate things for municipalities like Somerville.

The Deputy-Reeve hopeful is opposed to increased lot levies. "I don't complain about taxes as long as we get what we pay for," he stated.

Austin points out that his family has been involved in politics for "a lot of years," so he has developed a natural interest in the workings of municipal government.

"I've got the time, patience and commitment to get involved at this time," he said.

Austin is also concerned with government at the county level and as Deputy-Reeve he would at least have one vote as a member of County Council.

Galway-Cavendish

Oliver Lloyd and Elmer Vaters are vying for the Reeve's seat in the riding of Galway-Cavendish.

Incumbent Deputy-Reeve Bill Holstock was acclaimed.

While one candidate for Reeve says there are no major issues within the riding and that everything is under control, the challenger disagrees.

Oliver Lloyd

Oliver Lloyd is hoping to move up from Councillor to Reeve of the Galway-Cavendish riding with the coming election. After three years as Councillor Lloyd feels ready to take that step.

During the past three years Lloyd served on the roads, culture and recreation and sanitation committees. He helped set up and chaired the planning and advisory committee and was project manager on the recreation board.

"I've been a full time resident for eight years but I've been coming up here for 45 years," Lloyd said.

The candidate for Reeve had a consulting practice in Don Mills in the Municipal Civil Engineering field. He lives at Mississauga Lake.

The current trend in converting cottages into permanent homes is of some concern to Lloyd. He feels that certain criteria must be met before the appropriate zoning bylaws are passed. Upgrading of structures for year-round use isn't the only obstacle that must be considered, according to Lloyd. There are other factors such as access in winter, adequate sewage systems and busing of children to schools, which must be considered.

"We have to set up some guidelines," he said. "Development must be in the best interest of all the residents."

The only reference to his opponent for the Reeve's chair was to say: "To do a good job in politics, I think you have to be a full time resident."

Lloyd intends to promote central collection for recycling and he adds that the municipality is well in control when it comes to handling its three landfill sites.

Of his decision to become involved in municipal politics, Lloyd says: "I felt it was something I could do and would like to do. It was a way to put something back."

Elmer Vaters

Although he has never run for office before, Elmer Vaters has an extensive background in politics.

"I've been involved with politics on the federal, provincial and municipal levels as an organizer and campaign manager for 30-odd years," Vaters explained. "I have worked on a lot of committees and become close to some high profile people, including Premiers and Prime Ministers in the past."

Vaters says he has been approached over the years to run both provincially and federally, but declined.

The Agincourt resident has been an administrator and small business consultant since 1952.

Vaters says that the Council and Reeve haven't been running the show in Galway-Cavendish. "Everything is just rubber-stamped. Everything is controlled by one person."

"If I'm elected, I'll be running the council. I want to make that clear," he vowed.

"I am a team player. If people (municipal employees) don't want to work as a team they won't fit in and they won't be required any more."

Unhappy with the way matters are handled in the riding, Vaters indicated that many problems that could be resolved remain in limbo.

Vaters insists that he is a "great listener" and he plans to make himself available once a month (besides council meetings) to hear the concerns and discuss the problems of the people of the riding.

"The taxpayers will be notified where I am and they can come directly to me."

"I am a people oriented person and a man of action," Vaters concluded.

Minden council turns down write-off request

by Susan Grober

Minden council won't heed a request to write-off penalty charges for a couple's past due tax bill.

Council wants Charles Butler and his wife to pay about $1,600 in interest for a tax bill which the couple says they haven't received since moving in August of 1985.

Butler approached council last month, saying he's sure he gave notice about the change of address.

However, until June of 1991, the Butlers didn't receive a tax bill for their Minden cottage, so they didn't pay their property taxes.

Butler explained both he and his wife assumed the other had been paying the bill.

"I haven't been avoiding paying my bills," said Butler. "I'm not somebody who doesn't pay up on things."

He said Bell Canada and Ontario Hydro were aware he moved, and that anything else sent to his old address was forwarded to the new one.

"There's a reasonable doubt here — how did your office suddenly discover where I am?" he said.

"We're not questioning your credibility," said Reeve Bern Berry. "But, in my mind, I feel they (the tax bills) had gone out."

Clerk Tammy McKelvey said roughly 6,000 tax bills go out each year, and that the addresses are all on computer.

"I feel very confident in saying it went out with the rest of the tax bills," she said, adding that the Butler's bill was never returned from the post office.

The municipality wants Butler to pay $1,600 in interest, but Butler feels the penalty is too steep.

He offered to pay $500.

Couple must pay penalty: Minden councillors

(from page 19)

"If I get stuck with the whole thing, then I admit fault, and I don't want to do that," he said.

Butler also felt the municipality didn't work hard enough to notify him about the unpaid taxes. "I'm surprised that your office doesn't try to work a little bit at tracking down unpaid accounts."

Deputy-Reeve Mike Maher argued that the municipality has been forced to borrow money to cover the missing funds, and added there are far too many cases of tax arrears for the municipality to spend much time tracking down each one.

"Delinquent taxes are getting progressively worse over the past few years," said Maher. "Some have to be delinquent three years before we start taking action."

Council expressed sympathy for Butler, but insisted the interest must be paid.

"I can feel for Mr. Butler, and I can see his point," said Councillor Bob Sisson. "But we've been banking on that money for years, and we have to have it."

Verne Graham said Butler had money to invest during the period of time the tax bill wasn't paid, and the municipality needed that money. He also said it would set a precedent if council gave him a break.

Noting that Mr. Butler is a teacher, and his wife a psychologist, Councillor Lewis Stevens said: "I think both of you are very capable to live up to your credit obligations... We all must pay our bills before penalties would be incurred."

Businesses should support Chamber, says candidate

ing to invest in the community, and felt each business in the county should be assessed a special levy to support the Chamber of Commerce.

— Jack Cox: As a former municipal engineer for the county of Haliburton and in York County, he is familiar with the workings of municipal councils. He has worked with developers and planners, and feels the county needs a strong Chamber of Commerce to bring more people to the county. He said there is no need for the county wide official plan, especially during a time of restraint. He suggested the introduction of market value re-assessment, if the township is forced into implementing it, should be based on a number of years to obtain an averaging of values, rather than just relying on a single year.

Reeve Candidates

— Chris Hodgson: A native of Haliburton County, he returned here after attending university because he valued the rural lifestyle of the area.

He said the municipality has been well-governed in the past three years, using the per cent increase in local taxes as an example. At the county level, he said there is a need to open the budget process, he is dismayed that another study is being called for before the province will spend money on health services in the county, suggested that an open approach is needed.

— Sid Cooper: A native of the county and a high school teacher here since 1971, he will be retiring from teaching in the spring, which will give him the time to devote to the job of reeve. Strong leadership is needed at county council and restructuring of the county should precede any development of an official plan. The 35 per cent tax increase was too much and he would work to eliminate any increase in the coming years. Any development must take into consideration the impact on the environment, and waste management concerns must be addressed at the local level.

War a worthy sacrifice to keep peace

Report from Ottawa

from the office of Bill Scott, MP

"In Flanders Fields the poppies blow..."

We will never forget the tremendous sacrifices that Canadian veterans have made for the nation and the world to uphold international law and security.

"Short days ago we lived, felt dawn, saw sunsets glow, loved and were loved..."

The First World War ended at 11 a.m. on November the 11th, 1918, a date and time on which we reflect each Remembrance Day. It was a brutal war leaving 60,000

Canadians dead and 70,000 disabled. The Second World War was an international horror - 42,000 of Canada's brightest and best were lost and 55,000 disabled. In Korea 516 Canadians lost their lives and 12,000 were wounded.

"To you from failing hands we throw the torch; be yours to hold it high."

Less than a year ago we were again at war as part of the Multinational Coalition Forces in the Persian Gulf conflict. The United Nations called for force and we responded.

In the last 45 years we have only been at war twice, in Korea and in the Gulf. Both times it was at the request of the United Nations.

These have all been worthy sacrifices. Canadians have put their lives on the line for the sake of others because we know that the laws governing relationships among nations must be enforced if we are to keep peace in this world. We acted and continue to act decisively to maintain that peace.

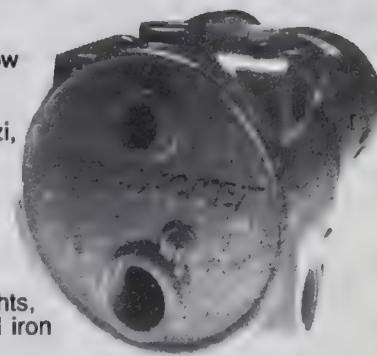

This November let us again thank the men and women who have worn the Uniform of Canada for their extraordinary and continuing service to this country.

OMHA Pee Wees best plays made as a team

While the OMHA PeeWees have gone undefeated in their first four games, they certainly pulled a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde in games 3 and 4.

First game 3. Minden travelled to Woodville on Friday, October 24th. and with last year's encounter still relatively fresh in their minds, expected some formidable competition. This was no the case as those who witnessed the game can testify. Woodville is a much smaller, slower team this year with what appears to be a goodly number of first year peewees. Regrettably our boys seemed to forget that hockey is a team sport and the entire game was a collection of one man shows. The most unfortunate aspect of the entire game is that Minden still came away the victors in spite of themselves. Please do not read into this comment that this writer wishes this team ill well. Quite the contrary. The point is that they may not have learned a valuable lesson from this experience. They did not play well, the other guys, fortunately, played worse.

In short, the first period went scoreless and it was not until 4:33 of the second that Minden's Chris Eskelin scored from the point. This was the only exception to the above comments. It was a well orchestrated play from the face off to the left of the Woodville goalie. Dave Raback pulled the puck back on the face-off and Curtis Fielding passed over to Eskelin who then put a nice shot along the ice in the right corner of the net.

The game remained 1-0 until 11:17 of the third when Dennis Woods scored after a scramble around the Woodville net. Assists to Marty Dettman and Jeff Wray. Woods scored again at 10:59 after another scramble around the net. Assists to Fielding and Raback. Raback closed out scoring at 3:35 with assists to Fielding and Tom Bagshaw.

Game four was back in Minden the next day against Little Britain and was a complete reversal of the previous game.

These young men were a team again. They moved the puck well, set up the plays and basically played the game picture perfect. It was a joy to watch.

In the first period Dennis Woods scored off a nice pass from Dave Raback at 11:00. At the 3:00 minute mark Marty Dettman scored on a pass from Jeff Wray. These were the only two goals of the period but Minden controlled the play without doubt. Raback scored Minden's third goal at 14:22 of the second with good anticipation and solo drive to the net. Curtis Fielding netted the fourth for Minden on a pass from Tom Bagshaw.

Minden's fifth goal came after Andrew McKelvey intercepted a clearing shot and made a perfect pass to Woods who deposited said puck without delay behind opposing goalie. To close out the scoring for the second period Wray took control of the puck in traffic and with great determination fought off two defenders to dash down the ice and score at 2:57.

After a short intermission the two teams returned for the third period. By this time Little Britain was becoming a bit frustrated as nothing was working for them and fatigue was taking its toll. Marty Dettman opened the scoring at 13:15 to put Minden up by 7 goals. Assists to Woods and Wray, Curtis Fielding capped off Minden's score to 8 with a pass from Chris Eskelin and a hard drive down the right wing followed by a well placed shot from just above the hash marks.

Little Britain had become increasingly "chippy" as the score mounted while Minden had shown good restraint. The balance of the game became more physical but Minden kept their cool and most of the penalties that were handed out were reasonable.

Until this point no mention has been made of Minden's goalie, Justin Rowden. Well it only seems fitting to save the best for last. Take a bow Justin, back to back shut outs speak very plainly of your talents. It is difficult to put into words when Justin made a key save with an outstretched glove or pad, perfection comes to mind.

It was a terrific effort by each member of the team, including unsung heroes Tom Neville and Daniel Howell and the game was played the way it should be, as a team. Please no more Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. We look forward to your next encounter with great anticipation.

Next home game is Saturday, November 9th. Minden vs. Oakwood.

Kountry Double D Catering's goalie leaves his crease in an effort to take control of the bouncing puck, as three Home Hardware forwards apply pressure to their opponents faltering defense. Home Hardware won, 8-4.

Double goals help Home Hardware beat Double D

Home Hardware dominated the play Monday night as the team doubled the score on Kountry Double D Catering during the Men's Recreational Hockey League action at the Minden arena. The final score in the game was 8-4.

Dave Rogers and Carey Gilligan led the charge for Home scoring two goals each. Rogers assisted on another effort while Gilligan figured in two other tallies.

Other Home scores were Dean Hewitt, Garry Harrison, Daryl Ward and Glenn Hall all with singles. Hewitt also assisted on five other markers with additional assists going to John Ballantyne with two, and Harrison with one.

While Double D opened the scoring early in the game, they quickly gave in under the Home attack and were unable to scramble out from under the four goal lead. Opening the scoring for Double D was Scott Hamilton. Other marksmen included Pete Allore, Tom Haley and Rick Beeney. Credit for assists went to Corey Walker and Haley with a pair, Harold Cowen, Doug Ray and Jeff Campbell with singles.

Terry Crowe was in the net for Home while Duane Lennie guarded the other end of the ice.

A goal with one second left to go in the game gave Westside Jug City the edge as they defeated The Times in a squeaker 3-2. The game winning goal came off the stick of Jeff Howe, with the assist going to Jerry Campbell. Howe also scored the opening goal of the contest, connecting on a pass from Andy Scholling. Lorne Burgess scored the other Westside goal with the assist going to Jeff Howe.

Scoring for The Times were Dan Read with an unassisted effort and Craig Crowe with Ivan Ingram picking up the assist.

Ron Telford was in the nets for Westside while Andrew Burk was the Times netminder.

With four goals sandwiched in the middle of Sid Stamp Fuel's pair, Hartwick Construction came out on the winning end of the last contest of the evening Monday night. Jeff Stamp and an unidentified player scored two goals each, one of Stamp's was an unassisted effort. Stamp also picked up a single assist. Colin Wilson and Dave Dollo each added a pair of assist to complete the scoring.

Jochamin Matysek scored both goals for Stamps with assists going to Ted Vasey, Larry Sawyer and Doug Schell.

Hartwick netminder was Rob Crowe while Kevin Smith was the Stamp goalie.

The teams are back on the ice this Monday evening with Westside facing Stamp at 8 p.m., Hartwick taking on Double D at 9 p.m., and Home playing Times at 10 p.m. Admission to the games is free.

It's time to turn green and heat clean with Pureflame. Call the Shell agent listed below for more information.

*Based on controlled laboratory tests in a furnace equipped with a conventional head burner. Actual results will vary depending on burner and furnace design, fuel consumption, operating conditions and other factors. Benefits will not be as dramatic with a properly maintained flame retention head burner. In one test a fuel reduction of 6% was achieved.

How deep do corporate green plans go?

In a finite world, nothing can grow steadily indefinitely and as the planet's biosphere and thus, our resource base, are steadily eroded, more and more effort and money will have to be expended trying to restore the quality of air, water and soil and to mitigate the loss of wilderness and species.

But the economies of most countries are under increasing pressure and in the industrialized nations a strong and unfettered "private sector" is being touted as the major force for creating jobs and an economic upturn.

Corporations have responded to public anxiety about the quality of air, water, soil and food by talking green, but how deep does it go?

Let's look at a specific case of an industry's response to a genuine ecological threat - the destruction of the stratospheric ozone layer by chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs).

When freon, a CFC, was announced in 1930, it was hailed as a triumph of modern chemistry. Non-toxic, non-flammable and highly stable, freon's properties made it an ideal gas as a refrigerant, solvent for cleaners, blowing agent for polystyrene and propellant for aerosol sprays.

By the '70s, hundreds of millions of kilograms of CFCs were being made annually for a multi-billion

Reflections

by David Suzuki

dollar business. Dupont, the giant chemical company, patented CFCs and currently produces up to a quarter of the annual global supply.

Because of their stability, CFCs persist in the environment, eventually drifting into the stratosphere where ultra-violet light (UV) which is absorbed by ozone, breaks off the chlorine.

Chlorine is highly reactive and destroys ozone. In 1973 when CFC-induced ozone depletion was discovered, scientists called for a halt to CFC production and use. DuPont's response was a vigorous campaign to head off any regulation or limits and to deflect criticism by denying the validity of the claims.

By the late '70s, the link between CFCs and ozone loss was undeniable, so the U.S., then Canada and Sweden, banned CFCs in spray cans. In Britain, however, up to half of all CFCs made continued to be put into spray cans until 1989.

Unfortunately, like CFCs, their substitutes are also greenhouse gases and one group - HCFCs - still contain chlorine. But under the Reagan-Bush administration, there was little pressure to search for better alternatives.

In 1985, a team of British scientists made the unexpected discovery of a severe loss of ozone over Antarctica and each year since the "hole" has reappeared, growing in size and remaining longer.

The United Nations Environment Program estimates that additional UV exposure from a one per cent decrease in the ozone layer will cause up to 150,000 additional cases of blindness from cataracts, a three per cent rise in skin cancer and suppression of the immune system thereby rendering us more susceptible to disease. Livestock, wildlife, forests and marine plankton could also be seriously affected.

In April, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) reported that over the past decade the ozone layer has been depleted at twice the rate expected and has decreased above North America by four to five per respectively.

Hence the EPA predicts that during the next 50 years, in the U.S. alone, there will be 12 million more cases of skin cancer and 200,000 related deaths compared with its previous estimate of 500,000 and 9,300 respectively.

In spite of the weight of evidence, companies continue to manufacture and sell CFCs and will not have to stop until 1997 at the earliest. Dupont and other companies assure us they are concerned about the environmental problems and are working to solve the deleterious side effects. But no company can undo what's done by removing CFCs from the air.

Once released, CFCs can take a decade to reach the stratosphere and centuries until they've finally disappeared. Even if all CFC production had stopped in 1990, destruction of stratospheric ozone would continue to increase for two decades!

Private corporations are in business to maximize profit and any environmental effects of their activity must be assessed against that bottom line.

The threat of litigation can be a powerful consideration but as we've seen with the tobacco industry, even in the face of overwhelming scientific evidence the burden of proof of hazard and effect rests heavily on the victim.

No scientist or doctor can ever prove that any individual's sickness or death was caused by CFC-induced ozone depletion. Although CFCs represented only two per cent of DuPont's income in the mid-'80s, there has been no indication that the company will voluntarily stop production out of environmental concern.

The private sector may be the economic engine of the country but the ground rules of profit make it difficult to be friends of the environment.

Ileitis and Colitis: two prevalent diseases, but no cure in sight

The incidence of Inflammatory Bowel Disease (IBD) in Canada is the highest in the world.

When grouped with other gastrointestinal diseases, they fill more hospital beds than cancer and diabetes combined. Yet, the cause of and cure for these painful diseases remains unknown.

"Having IBD is almost like having the 24-hour flu, day after day, month after month, year after year, but with more severe symptoms!", according to Cheryl MacDonald, Publicity Coordinator of the local Victoria-Haliburton chapter.

An estimated 200,000 Canadians suffer from Crohn's disease and ulcerative colitis, the most prevalent forms of IBD.

Anyone can get these diseases, but young adults between the ages of 20 and 40 are most susceptible with 2,000 new cases diagnosed each year.

About 20 percent of the sufferers are children.

IBD is a terrible disease, characterized by inflammation and sores on the gastrointestinal wall.

It can lead to severe abdominal pain, diarrhea, fatigue, fever, loss of appetite and malnutrition which can lead to weight loss. In children, it can retard or stunt growth.

In the absence of a cure for IBD, the goals of medical therapy are to reduce inflammation, induce remission and prevent a relapse of the disease.

During the last decade a new series of drugs have become available which have the same benefit as older types, but have fewer side effects.

Surgery can eliminate ulcerative colitis, but not Crohn's disease, and about half of the patients who have one operation to control Crohn's disease will need another operation within 10 years.

And so, the search goes on for the elusive cause and cure. It is to this challenge that the Canadian Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis (CFIC) is dedicated.

Two intestinal disease research units have been established, one at McMaster University in Hamilton, and the other at the University of Calgary, funded primarily by the CFIC.

To date, the foundation has awarded over $11 million to Canadian research efforts.

November is 'Awareness Month' for the CFIC and the local chapter is working hard to promote and raise funds for the debilitating diseases.

Donations to the foundation would be greatly appreciated, and can be sent to: Box 2, Lindsay Ontario, K9V 4R8. A tax deductible receipt will be issued.

In addition, the chapter is also selling Christmas fruit cakes. The cakes are made by Weston's and sell for $8.00.

Anyone who would like more information on the foundation, or who would like to order a Christmas cake, is invited to contact the local chapter at 1-324-0307 or 1-887-3460.

Crime of the week

Motor and accessories stolen in Stanhope

Between the 24th of June and the 28th of June, persons unknown stole an outboard motor and accessories from a boat which was docked on Grass Lk, Stanhope Township in Haliburton County. The perpetrators of this crime had mechanical knowledge of boats as they removed without damage a 60 hp Evinrude motor, OMC gear shift, OMC oil injector system, OMC battery in grey case and red OMC 5 gallon fuel tank. Value of the theft is estimated at $6,500.

If you have any information about this or any other crime, call Lindsay Crimestoppers at 1-800-563-TIPS (8477). You will never be asked to reveal your identity or to testify in court. If your information leads to an arrest Lindsay Crimestoppers will pay up to $1,000 in cash.

"My daughter means the world to me."

That's why I like to take her places and show her new things. I'm trying to teach her that people are basically the same. That way, she can learn to be considerate of others.

I also try to teach her by being a good example. I recently preplanned funeral services. That way she won't have to worry about making those arrangements for me.

Preplanning is considerate, and it's just one way I can show her how much I love her.

Initiative geared to stem high school drop-out rate

Canadians are seeing the national effort building this year around the plight of young people at risk of dropping out of high school. A five-year Stay-in-School Initiative, which began in 1990, has nearly $300 million earmarked by the federal government to help stem Canada's 30 percent high school drop-out rate.

There are three components. One component provides funding to communities which mobilize efforts to encourage our young people to complete their high school education. A second component funds federal programs and services that directly help young people stay in school. The third component is aimed at raising public awareness of the issue with its social and economic consequences.

The momentum around the dropout issue is growing with the development of a variety of activities. A television advertising campaign this fall is part of the awareness building, realistically capturing the bleak prospects looming for a young person who chooses not to complete high school. Across the country, private companies are lending their support to the campaign as well.

All of us are affected by the consequences of the 30 percent dropout rate. Consider these facts:

-More than two-thirds of the new jobs being created this decade will require Grade 12 or more education, many more than 17 years.

-Our international economic competitors stay in school longer: we rank 10th among 18 industrialized countries in the formal education enrollment rate for 17 year olds.

-Dropouts tend to be unemployed almost twice as often as high school graduates.

-On average, as of 1986, dropouts between 25 and 44 years of age were earning 25 percent less than those who had finished high school.

-A Senate Committee was told that young people who drop out of school because of poverty will cost the nation about $33 billion during the next 20 years.

While education clearly falls within provincial and territorial jurisdiction, all Canadians have a stake in solving the dropout issue. The consequences can be averted; there is room for optimism.

It will take coalitions of concern within our communities to solve the problem.

We can all make a contribution beginning in our own families and schools, by being mentors to youth who are having difficulty, and by fostering co-operative action by schools and businesses.

Animosity against Chamber unfair

There is nothing like a couple of all-candidates meetings to get the political pot up to a boil. I recently attended the tax coalition meeting in Minden and then Dysart's meeting last Tuesday. To the question about whether they would support the Chamber of Commerce as the marketing tool of the County, the overwhelming majority gave a complete endorsement of the Chamber.

Of course, it will never be possible to get complete agreement on this subject. Several candidates, including Beverly MacDuff of Glamorgan indicated, she would vote against any County funds going to the Chamber. However, what was unfortunate was that certain candidates spoke with what seemed to be some personal animosity about the Chamber and its directors. Beverly MacDuff even went so far as to accuse Chamber Directors of mismanagement.

This, of course, can be

by Shawn Hagerman

very counter productive to the future cooperation between County Council and the Chamber. Both groups must work together to solve the problems of today and the future. Elected councillors must have fresh answers to challenging problems of the future, not be looking back into the preconceived positions about the past.

First of all, if any candidates would like to meet with me (the treasurer), I would be glad to review the financial controls that are in place. Perhaps, many people don't realize it, but all directors serve as unpaid volunteers unlike the elected councillors. They do not receive a salary, mileage, or have anybody pay for them to attend conventions. Our budget, with its priorities of where, when and how the money is spent, is made after Board discussion, and only after County input. It is set once a year in the spring. The monthly accounts payable, that are only within budget, are itemized and listed once a month with a copy given to each on the executive and reviewed with the manager. Then a copy of the itemized list, along with the auditor's (Dawson Gray) monthly statement, is given to each Board Member, including the County Representative, at our monthly board meeting, for further discussion and final approval. Then the accounts payable list and monthly statement are separately approved, and are available to any County Rep or Chamber Member of examination. It is only after this final approval that cheques are signed by myself and the President (the only people currently authorized with cheque signing authority).

MacDuff must have examined our budget and monthly statements to feel there has been mismanagement. Then, where did it occur? County had full input into our budget and how the money was to be spent and never raised a question to our board about our budget. If MacDuff has not seen our budget or auditor's statements, then upon what is she basing her accusations of mismanagement? What both those on the Chamber and County need to do is not build walls, but bridges.

As well, all the candidates said they didn't agree with the County spending money on expanding the Economic and Planning Departments. If they don't want the County to do it and they turn their backs on the expertise and resources of a volunteer body such as the Chamber, then who and how exactly do they want to handle promoting economic activity within the County? to this question, they both provided no answer.

Chamber an integral force behind county commerce

Our Board has sincerely tried to listen and be sensitive to the needs and aspirations of the criticism put to the County. In our last travel guide, the marketing committee purposefully hired a professional travel writer to write a specific layout and story about Haliburton East, and gave that area equal geographic prominence in the guide. The Chamber's mandate is to promote economic activity in all the County.

75,000 copies of this guide highlighting areas such as Haliburton East was printed and have been distributed.

This spring the Board realized that the greatest push to cut funding came from certain quarters in the eastern end of the County. The Board's response, after having just suffered major cuts and struggling with them, was to realize that of all the areas in our County, the East was suffering the most. It's response was not to withdraw, but rather to reach out and help that area. Traveler counsellors were hired, trained, supervised, and paid through the Chamber, especially for Haliburton East.

They were located strategically in Gooderham in Glamorgan and Highway 28 in Cardiff Twp. The Chamber did everything it could over the summer to help those businesses and municipalities in the east who needed us. We realized the problems and, within our financial restraints, tried to do everything we could to help.

The only way out of our current economic slump is for elected municipal politicians, who can be flexible in attitudes and willing to sit down and work cooperative with the business community. The time for suspicion of motives and personal axes to grind must be put aside. There is just too big a job to do and it will need everybody's help to get it done.

While the composition of the Chamber Board has turned over and changed repeatedly over the last twenty years, its goal of sticking to its mandate of promoting economic development within the County has never varied. It has been the spark that brought the Manpower Outreach Center here, the LEAD Corporation, helped with the Sled Dog Derby, the Ride for Sight, and the Highland Games. It will continue to create and give birth to even more things in the future.

The Chamber has had differences in the past and to be healthy, it will have differences in the future. It is not a social or service club, but rather a group elected annually to serve its membership. It is a place where experienced and strong willed business people meet and share their vision of how this county will grow. It has in the past, is now, and will in the future, be composed of energetic, positive, hard working volunteers who give of their personal and business time, sharing their abilities, to help make this County a better place for all.

This recession will end as they all have done. Growth and development will accelerate again in this province. It is the Chamber's mandate to ensure it happens here. Success will come to those who work and believe it can happen.

The Chamber needs and wants to work with those on a municipal level who share that belief and can work with us to make it happen. The Chamber wishes all the candidates well at the upcoming election. We look forward to working with whoever gets elected. Just remember Lou Holtz's saying "If what you did yesterday looks good today, then you haven't done much today. We must all look to the future because that is where we are going.

What to look for when buying a new home.

For the past 10 years I've studied building techniques to discover how to build a better home. A home that would meet the needs of today's energy and comfort conscious home buyers. What I learned was that one home — the R-2000 home — is your best choice. Why? Well, there are a lot of reasons. Here are just a few.

Superior Construction

- greater attention to detail prevents excess air leakage.
- continuous operating ventilation system offers superior indoor air quality all year round.

More Comfort

- reduces cold spots and drafts, with even temperature from attic to basement.

Lower Heating Costs

- the R-2000 home saves you money because it is more energy efficient than a conventionally built home.

Individually Inspected

- every R-2000 home is inspected and awarded a certificate if it meets R-2000 standards.

QUALIFIED PURCHASERS CAN RECEIVE A $2,000 REBATE FROM ONTARIO HYDRO.

"R-2000 construction includes air-tight vapour seals around windows and electrical outlets."
Oliver Drerup, R-2000 Spokesperson.

EXCELLENCE
THE BETTER-BUILT HOME

Look for the R-2000 Excellence sign at your local builder. The R-2000 home, it's the "Better-Built Home."

The R-2000 program is supported by: Ontario Hydro; Ministry of Energy; Energy, Mines & Resources Canada.

Seniors prepare crafts for sale

Hello folks! Thanksgiving has come and gone again. At Hyland Crest it was spent very quietly, except several residents went to their families for the day. I had Thanksgiving dinner with Terry, Norma and my grandson, Rick Barnum in Haliburton.

Rev. John Burgess held the chapel service Sunday evening and those who attended are very thankful.

Monday evening Tom McAllister showed movies. Thank you Tom.

Tuesday morning chapel service was conducted by Rev. Edward Moll followed by a communion service. The residents thank Rev. Moll sincerely.

Tuesday afternoon we held a crafts class to make some articles for the Christmas Bazaar Sale.

Wednesday morning we had a pleasant surprise when the police and their canine friends came to visit us and demonstrate how the dogs are trained and hunt out drugs. Constable Maybee, of Minden, accompanied police officer Paul McNeill and his dogs. Officer McNeill hid packages of drugs in the auditorium and then brought in a black female lab dog whose name was "Coke". He was

by Winnifred Barnum

three years old and frisky but sure made short work of finding the hidden drugs.

The officer then brought in a beautiful German shepherd whose name was Rom. He gave Peter Fearrey a shock. When Peter went toward the officer, in a bound, Rom was ready to protect his trainer. The officers answered a great many questions. We enjoyed them and thank them greatly.

In the afternoon Doris took some of the residents to for a bus ride to Horseshoe Lake, over to Hwy. #121 and back to Minden. We stopped at the donut shop. The volunteers, Fern Donneley, Vera Smith, Pearl Cowan and Melinda Nesbitt, helped us into the shop for coffee and donuts. It was a very nice change for us. We certainly thank those who cared for us.

Dianna Morris came and read to us Wednesday and Friday evenings. We enjoyed this very much and thank you Dianna.

Wednesday evening pastor Murray and his helpers were here for a service in the Carnation Lounge and we thank him sincerely.

Thursday the Catholic Church ladies of Haliburton prepared and served a lovely tea in the dining room. Everyone enjoyed it very much and thank you sincerely.

Terry and Norma came Thursday and took me out for lunch and then we went shopping in Minden.

Thursday evening Lewis and Jean Stevens and Norma Amyotte called Bingo for us in the auditorium. Thank you very much.

The Grandfathers Five provided the music for Happy Hour and Don and Ellen Holden, Mary Guillemin, Bonnie Fullan and Lorraine Swinson were those who looked after our needs and we thank them all.

Congratulations to Lula Ferrill who celebrated her birthday on October 9. Many happy returns, Lula.

Report for the 19-25

Saturday October 19, Nancy and Troy Briggs came to Hyland Crest to help make our weekend a little more interesting. They organized a couple of tables of cards. We sincerely thank them for their endeavours.

Rev. John Burgess conducted the Sunday night chapel service with Alice Jones at the organ. We thank them greatly for being so faithful.

Monday morning we had fitness as usual and trivia in the afternoon. It is surprising how much we find we forget and how much we remember when we really try.

In the evening Tom McAllister came to show us movies. One was "Country Coyote Goes Hollywood" and "Granny Came From Galway". We thank Tom heartily.

Tuesday morning chapel service was taken by Rev. Ed (more on page 40)

Hard work makes celebration special

(from page 39)

Moll. That we appreciate immensely.

In the afternoon it was beautiful. Doris took us for a bus ride helped by Linda Fry and Ellen Holden. We went to Haliburton, Eagle Lake, West Guilford, Carnarvon and home after stopping at Kawartha Dairy who treated us all to an ice cream cone for which we truly thank them.

Wednesday afternoon we made items to sell at our Christmas Bazaar to be held on November 6, 1991 in our auditorium from 2 to 4.

Congratulations to Mary Smith on the occasion of her birthday on October 26, 1991. Many happy returns, Mary.

Thursday was tea party again. It was provided by the Minden Craft Group, held in the main dining room. the residents thank you ladies very much for the lovely tea. As I was attending a Residents Council conference, I was unable to attend the tea party. Carrie Drysdale went with me as my chaperone. My son Terry was going to Peterborough so he took us with him.

At last we have celebrated 25 years of excellent care at Hyland Crest. The weather did not co-operate very well but everything went well inside. The auditorium was arranged for a delicious buffet tea. The decorations were in white and blue.

Rheta Jones welcomed everyone and had the flag raising on the stage. The dignitaries were piped in by the Haliburton Legion Pipe Band and Earl Cooper. Rheta Jones gave the opening remarks and introduced the dignitaries and guests. Wm. Scott, M.P., presented a picture of our queen. Dennis Drainville, M.P.P., presented a plaque on behalf of the Government of Ontario. Carol Puffer, Warden, brought greetings. Gary McKnight, C.A.O., presented a plaque. Mike Elder presented a plaque from the C.U.P.E. staff, and Winnifred Barnum, assisted by Doris Robertson and Gary McKnight, presented, on behalf of the residents, a banner to be hung at Hyland Crest.

Other special guests were Dr. Dawson, Rev. Ed Moll, Alan Cavell, Muriel Medley, Elsie Bursey (first administrator), and Mark Vasey. During social time, Bill Gliddon played soft piano music and an interlude of beautiful music during presentations.

Following presentations, Grace Coburn received a standing ovation for her beautiful rendering of "Bless This House", which she also sang at the opening ceremony 25 years ago.

A lovely cake was cut by Grace Coburn and Winnifred Barnum, provided by Lynn Shirley and staff.

The proceedings were closed by a benediction by Rev. Ed Moll and closing remarks by Bern Berry (chairman, committee of management) and a musical interlude by Bill Gliddon.

None of this could have been possible without the hard work and planning of our administration, office activities, adjuvant, nursing, housekeeping, laundry and maintenance staff.

Staanworth residents enjoy dinner kas folds.

I fumbled for my glasses,
my boots, my hat and gloves.
I had to feed my chickadees, my cardinals, my doves.

I reached the door and grabbed the seed, my boots all ready to plow,

When my wife rolled over and said, "You old fool, we live in Florida now!"

And a note from the bird...
I'm leaving now, I'm just a renter,
The trees are changing
and I smell winter.

You can stay here and do your thing,
But I'm going south until next spring.

I will miss you a little and your seed a lot.

Please paint that feeder so it doesn't rot!

If I get back and you're still here,

We both lucked out for another year.

Residents enjoyed a dinner out at the Legion in Kinmount. A special birthday cake honored all the summer and fall folks who had celebrated another year.

Some of our residents attended the Hyland Crest anniversary celebrations and thoroughly enjoyed the program.

On Nov. 7th we will have the opportunity to meet and question the candidates who are running for Municipal office. Let's get the information now and not complain later.
